DOMESTIC ABUSE EDUCATION

Taking control back

By LISA KENNEDY-COX

WILMINGTON - Domestic violence comes in many different forms, but the underlying cause is clear: control.

A panel on domestic violence was held last Wednesday at the Wilmington Methodist Church to raise awareness and provide information for the vulnerable in our community and for anyone struggling with an abusive situation.

Wilmington Detective Patrick Nally, Family Attorney Mark Perkins and Tiffany Melendez Director of Programs and Services of RESPOND, Inc. were on the panel to answer questions and hear concerns.

Often, victims of abuse are afraid to get help as they have likely been threatened. "If you leave, I'll kill you," is one of the more ubiquitous threats, but there are other, insidious ways an abuser keeps their prey paralyzed such as threats to take children and home away or withdrawing food and water and needed medications.

The pastor of the church, Travis Bonette Kim, started with a prayer. "God, sometimes our vision of you is marred by violence."

Melendez started the discussion, sharing about RESPOND, Inc. which originated in Somerville, but is now in 11 other cities and towns in Massachusetts.

RESPOND, Inc. is New England's first domestic violence agency and the second oldest in the nation, and is a pioneer in the WILMINGTON - The Monarch butterfly population is dwindling in our area of the world, and Daisy Troop 87002 is determined to bring the species back.

The Daisies, first graders at the Woburn Street School, met with the Crier on May 6th to discuss their plans and what they have done so far.

The Troop is part of a project called Earth and Sky, and the girls are working hard to ensure more Monarchs come back. The project came out of a Journey book entitled, "Between Earth and Sky," which the girls have been reading and learning about their environment, including conservation and protection of our natural resources.

Pam Southern and Julie Hall are co-leaders for the troop, and have been working with the girls, teaching them the importance of conservation and environment so that they can learn and incorporate better ways to protect our Earth.

The Daisies have been working on their final Clover Patch. To earn the Patch, the girls had to choose a topic

WILMINGTON - The reorganization of the Board of Selectman was on the agenda Monday night, and Selectman Judith O'Connell has stepped down from her position as Chairman of the Board after serving in that capacity for the past year.

O'Connell began, "At this time I just want to publicly acknowledge the Board and say thank you to all of you for the last year. I have enjoyed being your Chair. It certainly has been a very enlightening and educational experience for me. I feel that we worked well collectively as a team. We certainly didn't always agree on everything, but I think the professionalism and the civility and the work ethic that we displayed as a Board, certainly, in my opinion, it illustrates the fact that we are committed to the residents of Wilmington and conducting the business of the Town in a positive and respectful manner."

O'Connell added, "We have worked well as a team. I would like to thank the administrative team, Paula [Barry], Wendy [Martinello], and Bev [Dalton]. Especially you, Bev, you are really good at your job and have worked here for years and years. I wanted to publicly thank you for being such an integral part of this Board."

WILMINGTON - Ann St. Onge was honored as Wilmington's new 'Good Guy' at the Knights of Columbus Hall Friday night, where, surrounded by family, friends, and neighbors, she was feted for her dedication to the community. A resident of Shady Lane for more than three decades, St. Onge demonstrates her commitment to community through the myriad organizations and projects she serves, every day.

Al and Marilyn Penny perhaps summed up Ann's volunteerism best in their nomination letter, one of at least 11 received by the Good Guy committee.

First, some background about her activities. Ann volunteers at Access Is Mandatory (AIM), an organization that offers socialization, activities, and lunch weekly to the disabled. She sits on the Executive Boards of the Friends of the Library and the United Methodist Church's Women of Wilmington, the latter of which provides support to the Wilmington Food Pantry, the Community Fund, and more.

Ann also serves on the Outreach Committee and works on countless fundrais-

Math students shine at tournament

WILMINGTON - Local math students from the North and West Intermediate Schools in Wilmington got the chance to compare their skills with some of the best students in Eastern Massachusetts this past Saturday at the Middlesex Math Madness Tournament, hosted by the Memorial Elementary School in Burlington and to say that they held their own against the best of the best would be a vast understatement.

While both schools had outstanding individual performances, the North Intermediate School had a truly special day, finishing third among 25 teams at the tournament, competing against schools from Newton, Billerica, Burlington, Tewksbury and the North Middlesex Public Schools (Ashby, Townsend, Pepperell), among others.

Making the performance of these students even more impressive was that it came against many teams featuring sixth grade students, while Wilmington was represented by only fourth and fifth graders.

The North Team, made up of some of the top fourth and fifth graders at the school, were part of the Math Olympiad Program at the school, as were the members of the West Team. The students who received the top five scores at each school during the Olympiad Program were selected for the Middlesex Math Madness Tournament.

Members of the third place North team were Maura Fiorenza, Marissa Gallozzi, Anay Gandhi, Emily Gray and Lilian Nguyen, each of who performed extraordinarily well under intense pressure to solve ten incredibly challenging questions.

The West team featured strong efforts from Srikar Mallajosyala, Jia Kumar, Cameron Eich, Olivia Spizuoco and Angelyn Ciampa.

The North team was coached throughout their preparation for the tournament by fourth grade teachers Sharon Tener and Jill Reynolds, while the West squad was coached by Jen Yelenak and Robin Barry.

On the day of the tournament the teams were led by the direction of coaches LisaMarie Ippolito, Wilmington's Elementary School Math Coordinator, as well as Grade 5 teacher Sally Lojek and Grade 4 teachers Tener and Reynolds. North Intermediate School Principal Christine McMenimen also attended the tournament to cheer on her students.

This was Wilmington's first ever appearance at the Math Olympiad, and they wasted little time in putting their intense training to good use and making an instant lasting impression.

Ippolito, who in her role as Elementary Math Coordinator, has seen tremendous growth in the Wilmington Math Program over the past couple of years, was thrilled to see this latest achievement for the students of Wilmington Public Schools.

"It was a great experience for all of us. The kids were very engaged during the entire tournament and we were very happy to represent the town of Wilmington and thrilled to do so well," Ippolito said. "It was a very exciting day, because we were all at the edge of our seats after the students completed the questions, waiting for the results."

And while the results were obviously great, they were only part of the reason that Saturday was such a great day.

"Even better than seeing our kids finish so well among so many great schools was seeing the happiness and joy in their faces from their love of math," Ippolito said.

"Another great part was that we had so many supportive parents who came to support their children. It was great to hear their enthusiasm."

"It was also great to see how the kids collaborated as a team to come up with their answers. And later as we were waiting for the scores to be tabulated, our students did a great job of sharing with other schools the strategies they used to solve the problems."

All ten students who participated in Saturday's tournament received a Certificate of Participation, while members of the third place North team each received a medal in honor of their achievement.

Harnden helped capture Confederate President

By LARZ F. NEILSON

The Civil War officially ended 150 years ago last month. A month later, Union cavalry captured Confederate President Jefferson Davis. The man who tracked him down was Lt. Col. Henry Harnden, a native of Wilmington.

Most historical accounts say that Davis was captured by Lt. Col. Benjamin Pritchard and the Fourth Michigan Cavalry, with a mention that Harnden's First Wisconsin Cavalry arrived later, or assisted.

But it was Harnden who actually located the fleeing president. It was Harnden who told Pritchard on which road he was following Davis. And it was Harnden who confirmed the identity of the captive.

The controversy over the capture of Davis involves not only the question of who actually captured Davis, but responsibility for a skirmish between two brigades of Union troops, which killed two men. There are questions as to whether the Michigan troops knew of a $100,000 reward for Davis. And there is the matter of a report that Harnden wrote which was never received by the Secretary of War.

No formal inquiry was ever held to determine responsibility for the skirmish, so the matter was never formally settled. Harnden, though, was exonerated by Congress, after settlement of the reward for Davis' capture. Harnden wrote a book about it, entitled The Capture of Jefferson Davis, published in 1898.

Harnden was the grandson of Lt. Benjamin Harnden, one of four brothers who fought at Concord. His father was Jonathan Harnden, his mother Rhoda (Abbott). Their home was the old Harnden homestead on what is now High Street, built by Richard Harnden about 1665.

Born in 1823, Henry went to sea at age 18. The 1850s found him running a sawmill in Ripley, Wisconsin. He was a justice of the peace, town treasurer and an abolitionist. With war approaching, he enlisted as a private in the First Wisconsin Cavalry in July 1861. He fought in 30 engagements in Missouri, Arkansas, Tennessee and Georgia, and was twice wounded. He rose quickly through the ranks and on Jan. 6, 1865, he became a lieutenant colonel. He was 42 years old.

Davis fled from Richmond, Virginia, the capital of the Confederacy on the night of April 2, 1865. Then after Gen. Lee's surrender on April 9, he and several others headed south through the Carolinas into Georgia.

President Abraham Lincoln was assassinated on the night of April 14. Believing that Davis was involved in the killing, President Andrew Johnson on May 2 posted a $100,000 reward for his capture.

Late on May 6 in Georgia, Davis learned that his wife's wagon train had passed, and that it was in danger of attack by disbanded soldiers. Mrs. Davis was travelling with her three children, her sister, and several former Confederate officers who had surrendered and then been paroled.

Davis rode some 60 miles to reach his family. He remained with them that night and through the next day. She urged him to leave, which he did, but he became lost. Caught in a storm, he found shelter in a vacant farmhouse on the night of May 8.

Col. Burton Harrison, accompanying Mrs. Davis' party, found the president on the floor of the farmhouse, wrapped in a blanket, so tired he did not get up to speak to his family. Davis urged Harrison to continue south.

After resting a few more hours, Davis continued on with his company and overtook his family. They travelled together for some 20 miles before making camp near Irwinsville. It was 5 p.m. on May 9. Davis planned to leave after dinner.

Then he decided to stay a couple of more hours, thinking that if the camp was raided by southerners, they might possibly listen to the Confederate president. Desperately tired, he stretched out in his wife's tent and was soon sound asleep, fully dressed. His horse remained saddled, with his pistols in their holsters.

On April 20, Union Maj. Gen. James Wilson's troops had captured Macon and established a headquarters there. On a suggestion from Gen. Emory Upton, Wilson offered a $500,000 reward, the proceeds to come from the gold in the Confederate treasury, which Wilson believed to be with Davis.

Wilson sent troops out in various directions. One scouting party was able to ride with the Davis train in South Carolina, crossing into Georgia. A courier notified Wilson that Davis was in Washington, Georgia.

On May 6, Wilson ordered Gen. J. G. Croxton to detail 150 men from his best regiment, commanded by his best officer, and go in pursuit of Jefferson Davis.

"The Old Puritan," Lt. Col. Harnden was chosen for the task. Still recovering from a wound received on April 16, Harnden rose from a sick bed to embark on the mission.

Harnden's detail was ordered to leave immediately, without even waiting for rations. They left before there was any knowledge of the reward that had been offered.

Harnden had no doubt but that the Confederates would fight desperately. It probably be a battle to the death, but the First Wisconsin had never been whipped, and he had no fear that they would be whipped now.

They rode all night and all the next day. In Dublin, after 36 hours in the saddle, Harnden and his men threw themselves on the ground to sleep.

Harnden was now sure that he was hot on Davis' trail. They pressed on, only to become lost in dense woods in a heavy rain. The next obstacle facing the troops was a great swamp, known as the Gum Swamp. It appeared that the Davis party had crossed the swamp. However, the heavy rains had raised the water, making a crossing nearly impossible.

Nearby was a small plantation. Harnden presented the owner with a blunt proposition. He could guide the troops across the swamp, or they would stay and eat him out of house and home. The man led them through the swamp, where, for miles, the water was up to their saddles.

At Abbeville, Georgia, they learned that a party with wagons had passed through, headed for Irwinsville. Then they saw four Union soldiers of the Fourth Michigan Cavalry, commanded by Lt. Col. Benjamin Pritchard.

Harnden asked Pritchard if there was any news of Davis. Pritchard had none. Pritchard had left Macon 24 hours after Harnden, ordered to patrol the river crossings.

Harnden gave Pritchard all the information he had. He been on the track of Davis for three days, and was proceeding on toward Irwinsville. He laid claim of first right to the road, which Pritchard acknowledged.

Harnden pushed on and rejoined his company. They soon arrived at a place where the Davis party had lunched. Campfires were still burning.

Harnden did not want to approach Davis' encampment in the dark, lest Davis escape in the shadows. The Wisconsin troops set camp about 9 p.m. and were in the saddle again by 3 a.m. An advance guard was to keep a sharp lookout for the enemy.

TAX-DEFERED FUNDS FOR THE DISABLED

New this year, a tax-advantaged savings plan for long-term disabled individuals is similar to a 529 plan: contributions are not deductible and earnings grow on a tax-deferred basis. Withdrawals are tax-free if the funds are used for housing, education, transportation, job training or other such support issues. Non-qualified withdrawals are taxable and subject to a 10-percent penalty.

The ABLE (Achieving Better Life Experience) accounts will be established by the states and only residents can participate in a state's plan. Contributions of up to $14,000 a year will be allowed for the benefit of those who became blind or disabled before age 26. ABLE accounts can be set up by a parent or grandparent or the beneficiary himself. Account beneficiaries would remain eligible for Medicaid and, if the account is below $100,000, even for SSI.

As with 529s, rollovers are permissible to another ABLE account for that individual or for a disabled sibling. When the beneficiary dies, however, the state can recover some of its Medicaid expenses; the remainder would go to a designated beneficiary, who would owe tax—but not a penalty—on the remaining account earnings.

We keep up with the latest tax-advantaged opportunities, the better to serve you at:

Bike Safety and Initiatives Programs coming in Tewksbury

The Tewksbury Police Department is on the lookout! Officers are looking to reward young people "caught" wearing their bike helmets with gift certificates.

"It's really a good way to encourage helmet use in town" said Tewksbury Police Department Safety Officer Jennie Welch, who oversees the program.

"It's actually the law that young people 16 and under wear a bike helmet", Officer Welch remarked.

Massachusetts law requires children 16 years of age or younger, who operate a bicycle, or who ride as a passenger on a bicycle, on a public way or bike path, to wear a properly fitted and fastened helmet.

A bicycle helmet can reduce the risk of serious head and brain injury by as much as 90%. Unfortunately, 89% of people killed in bicycle crashes with motor vehicles were not wearing a helmet. For more information on the bicycle helmet law and bicycle safety tips, go to www.mass.gov/highwaysafety.

"If you get 'caught' wearing your helmet, you'll get a gift certificate courtesy of our local sponsors. If you don't have a helmet, the police department will provide you with one", said Officer Welch.

The Tewksbury Police Department would like to thank its local business partners for supporting its efforts to keep the children of Tewksbury safe. This is only one of many events in which the Tewksbury Police Department will be working with its partners to make Tewksbury a safer pedestrian and biking community.

Also, The Tewksbury Police Department and Tewksbury Rail Trails would like to help ensure the safety of local children by hosting its Annual Bike Safety Rodeo at the Tewksbury Memorial High School on Sunday, June 7th from 10AM-1PM.

The event is free and open to all families in Tewksbury. Run the obstacle course, get your bike checked out, grab some fun giveaways, and enter your name to win donated prizes.

The statistics are staggering: on average, 250 children in the United States under the age of 14 die each year because of a bicycle crash. Another 300,000 children are treated in emergency rooms for severe head injuries. Many of these accidents could have been prevented if these children were riding safe bikes, wore bicycle helmets, and knew the basics about safe cycling.

Several local businesses and community groups will be joining in the effort by donating time & resources to the event. During the Bike Rodeo, members from the Emergency Department Team at Lowell General Hospital will be providing education on the need for head protection. The Tewksbury Police Department would like to not only encourage children to wear a bike helmet, but to also wear them correctly. Bicycle helmets can reduce the risk of head injury by as much as 85%.

Wearing a bicycle helmet is such a simple way to help ensure your child's safety. Parents may think their children are safe riding around the neighborhood, however, research shows that most serious bicycle crashes occur on a quiet neighborhood street.

Additional Tips for safety include:

Wear a Bike Helmet: Protect your brain, save your life. For more information see the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration's Fitting Your Bike Helmet.

Adjust Your Bike to Fit: Stand over your bike. There should be 1 to 2 inches between the rider and the top tube (bar) if using a road bike and 3 to 4 inches if using a mountain bicycle. The seat should be level front to back, and the height should be adjusted to allow a slight bend at the knee when the leg is fully extended. The handlebar height should be at the same level with the seat.

Check Your Equipment: Before riding, inflate tires properly and check that the brakes work.

See and Be Seen: Whether daytime, dawn, dusk, foul weather, or at night. Wear neon, fluorescent or other bright colors when riding, to make yourself visible to others. Also wear something that reflects light, such as reflective tape or markings, or flashing lights. Remember, just because you can see a driver doesn't mean the driver can see you.

Control Your Bike: Ride with two hands on the handlebars unless signaling a turn. Place books and other items in a bike carrier or backpack.

Watch for and Avoid Road Hazards: Look for hazards that may make you crash, such as potholes, broken glass, gravel, puddles, leaves, and dogs. If riding in a group, the rider in front should yell and point to hazards to alert other riders.

Avoid Riding at Night: It's harder for other road users to see bicyclists at dusk, dawn or nighttime. Use reflectors on the front and rear of the bike. White lights and red rear reflectors or lights are required by law in all States.

For more information about this event or to get involved, please contact Officer Jennie Welch (978)851-7373, EXT 230.

The storm

Not everyone knows when a storm is coming. The signs can be, for some, subtle enough they're easily missed in the hurry-up lives we all live. Running a business, shuttling the kids thither and yon, we're just so busy we miss the signs.

Long before the first rumble of thunder or that piercing stab of lightning show up, the signs are clear, imminent, and unavoidable. Get out of the way or risk getting wet - or electrocuted.

But they're there. The storm always tells us when it comes. The sky darkens. The wind blows just the right way that inverts the leaves... looking outside they provide a sharp, Technicolor contrast to the blackening sky.

I grew up on a lake and even as a little girl loved watching the storms with my father. I'd sit on his lap in a rocking chair on our three-season porch with the lakeside sliding doors open wide to the wind, the sound, and the lights. The theater of my front yard was rarely matched anywhere and only limited by the rarity of conditions necessary to produce the squall.

Chain lightning struck the waves with unbridled power. Rain pounded against the windows. Thunder boomed through the rooms. I was never afraid. Other members of my family did not enjoy the pyrotechnic display of a summer storm, rather hiding under the covers, or under the bed.

I love storms to this day. No, I don't love the destruction and, in severe cases, the loss of property or life. But a storm itself is a beautiful thing. Standing outside, face turned up to the rain, getting into the thick of it. That is the best part.

Adversity, for some, is like a storm. You can see it coming, sometimes from miles away, if you know the signs. Managing adversity, being in the thick of it... that's the thing.

Hide under the covers or dance in the rain?
I'll take the latter.

Let's Talk About Hearing

by Loleata Wigall

Free Phones

I received some emails this week from some friends about the "Free Phones" column. It is nice that they read the columns. And, it is especially great when they give me additional information.

One friend said there are "three requirements for a CaptionCall phone. 1. Internet Connection 2. Analog (plain) telephone line 3. Hearing loss. The phone is no cost with a signed Certification form from an audiologist, a Hearing Instrument Specialist, or General Practitioner physician. The phone enables the user to keep the SAME phone number. There is no 1-800 number that needs to be dialed." Captioning assistants and voice recognition software is used and what the incoming caller is saying is captioned, or typed onto the person's phone with 97% accuracy. The phone also has an amplification feature where can customized with the frequency boost of the incoming callers voice. The user must have an internet connection in order to qualify for the phone. The amplification is a wonderful bonus!

"CaptionCall is proud to announce a mobile option, as well. This is an FREE App that can be downloaded from the iTunes Store and a CaptionCall Installer will come to the individuals home to help them turn their iPad into a Mobile Captioning device. The hard of hearing individual may have a CaptionCall landline phone AND use the Closed Caption Mobile APP for FREE with Professional Certification."

For the program run by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, other professionals such as Massachusetts Rehabilitation Counselors can sign the authorization forms. These phones are designed to people with vision problems and mobility problems. The main purpose of the program is to give more people access to phones that are helpful to keep communication open for families.

Another option for telephone use is Bluetooth streamers or transmitters that will stream or send the conversation from a person's cell phone or Bluetooth landline phone to their hearing aids. Most hearing aids today have the capability to receive a Bluetooth signal. Some streamers must be plugged into the cell phone. Most landline Bluetooth phones just stream or send the signal to the hearing aids. Most manufacturers of hearing aids have their own system to work with their hearing aids. Sometimes these options are included in the purchase of aids, but most of the time they are extra. But, it is great technology to help hard of hearing individuals stay in touch with their family and friends.

Improving Millennials' Financial Literacy with Mobile Technology

by Jason Alderman

The 2015 Financial Literacy Summit 2015, (<http://www.practical-moneyskills.com/summit2015/>) held April 15 in Chicago and co-hosted by Visa Inc. and the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, focused on how mobile technology might improve millennials' learning, savings and investing behavior in the future.

A recent FICO study said millennials, the demographic born between 1980 and 2000, not only represent the largest group of individuals using mobile banking applications, but also the biggest cohort partaking in Internet browsing, emailing, searching, social networking and news consumption on a smartphone or tablet, bypassing desktop machines entirely. By comparison, only 5 percent of 35-54 year-olds and 3 percent of those 55 years and older are using mobile devices exclusively.

The Summit audience heard particularly eye-opening insights from a panel on how early education and mobile technology applications can help build future generations' financial literacy. While online gaming (<http://practical-moneyskills.com/games/>) is showing particular success in training grade- and high-school age students in financial fundamentals, panelists suggested that the broader solution will depend on national educational policy and a broader understanding about young adults and their financial needs.

Amando M. Tetangco, Jr., governor of Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas, the central bank of the Philippines, told the audience that young Filipino adults are "struggling more than their older counterpart groups with regard to budgeting" and retirement planning, but he said he is still optimistic: "I believe there are certain characteristics of millennials that provide opportunities to build [their financial capabilities]. They have a desire for change." Such change, he said, should be driven by data and policy should be made personal and tied to technology solutions embraced by younger citizens.

Panelist Jason Young, CEO and Co-Founder of MindBlown Labs, an Oakland, California-based software developer behind the Thrive 'n' Shine personal finance game app for teens and young adults, said mobile technology will bridge the gap between financial literacy and a lifetime of successful financial decision making. "Eighty to 90 percent of U.S. teens have smart devices. That's huge, but the important thing to understand is that these aren't just things they use. They're a way of life."

Developing a stronger connection between financial literacy education and mobile technology could be beneficial for global educators and policymakers trying to improve spending, saving and investing knowledge for future generations. In January, the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD) released a first-time global financial literacy study (<http://www.oecd.org/pisa/keyfindings/pisa-2012-results-volume-vi.htm>) that revealed that U.S. students ranked between eighth and twelfth place among all 18 participating countries in overall literacy skills.

Bottom line: Focusing on the way under-35 consumers use smartphones and tablets might provide a way for educators, financial services companies and policymakers to narrow the financial literacy gap.

Wilmington seeking applicants for vacant board positions

Wilmington Town Manager Jeffrey Hull is seeking applicants for vacant positions on various Boards, Commissions and Committees.

Participation in a volunteer position offers residents the opportunity to help shape and effect the Town through the work of these important entities.

Presently the Town is seeking applicants for the Planning Board, Conservation Commission, Historical Commission and Cable Television Advisory Committee. A brief description of each is available on the Town's website along with instructions on how to apply.

The Planning Board and Conservation Commission have broad roles including enforcing both state and local laws relative to Zoning, Sub-Division Control, and Environmental Protection. Each has a direct hand in determining how private and public land may be developed, changed, and used throughout Town.

The Historical Commission is focused on the preservation of historic resources in Town. The Commission helps develop and implement programs and preservation initiatives for the Harnden Tavern and other historic structures and sites.

The Cable Television Advisory Committee is an ad hoc committee that assists the Town in the cable television license renewal process. The Advisory Committee assists the Town in conducting a public feedback process and advises on the license renewal. The license renewal process begins three years prior to the license expiration. Comcast's license is set to expire 2018.

The Town recently enhanced its website to better promote vacancies and available volunteer opportunities. Information about available vacancies, access to the Application for Appointment, and information about the roles are now easily accessible online.

Residents interested in being considered for one of the volunteer positions are encouraged to visit www.wilmingtonma.gov and click on Boards and Committees at the top of the homepage.

Democratic Town Committee's annual scholarship breakfast, May 16

The Wilmington Democratic Town Committee is hosting its Annual Scholarship Breakfast on Saturday, May 16 from 9:30 AM to 11:30 AM at Rocco's Restaurant (193 Main Street).

The Committee annually provides scholarships to graduating seniors of Wilmington High School and the Shawsheen Valley Technical High School with funds raised from this event.

After breakfast is served, attendees will hear from this year's featured speaker, Congressman Seth Moulton.

Congressman Seth Moulton served four tours in Iraq as a Marine Corps infantry officer, including two tours as a platoon commander and two tours as a Special Assistant to General David Petraeus. In 2003, Moulton was in the first company of Marines to enter Baghdad. In 2004, he led a platoon during the Battle of Najaf, the fiercest fighting of the war to that time.

As a Special Assistant to General David Petraeus, Moulton worked on a small team of Marines leading counterinsurgency operations south of Baghdad in 2005 and during the Surge. He left the Marines in 2008 with the rank of Captain.

Congressman Moulton was elected to Congress in 2014 on a platform of bringing new, bipartisan leadership to Congress. In his first term, Congressman Moulton is focused on economic growth for Massachusetts families and improving veterans' health care through the VA, where he still receives his care. Congressman Moulton serves on the House Armed Services Committee, the House Budget Committee and the House Small Business Committee in the 114th Congress.

Wilmington's State Representatives, Jim Miceli and Ken Gordon, will also speak. The Committee thanks both men for helping bring Moulton to Wilmington.

Enjoy a delicious breakfast, meet your Congressman, and support a great cause for only $20! Contact Wilmington Democratic Town Committee Chairman Gary DePalma at 978-658-2330 or gbd87@comcast.net to reserve your seat!

Due to limited space and an anticipated high interest level from the community, the Committee cannot guarantee tickets will be available at the door.

Graduating seniors at Wilmington High School and the Shawsheen Valley Technical High School are encouraged to contact their Guidance Offices beginning in early May to learn more about the Wilmington Democratic Town Committee Scholarships.

In addition to its traditional scholarship offerings, the Committee is offering a scholarship this year for Shawsheen Tech students who choose to go to work in their trade immediately upon graduation.

Representative Miceli scores high marks on environmental legislation

Boston, MA - Legislative scorecards from the Massachusetts Audubon Society and the Environmental League of Massachusetts were released, ranking both Senators and Representatives on several pieces of legislation dealing with environmental protection, outdoor recreation, and preservation of natural resources. Representative James Miceli, legislator for Tewksbury and Wilmington, received a perfect 100 from Mass. Audubon and a 95 from the Environmental League based on his advocacy and voting record. Scores were compiled partially on a number of legislative matters deemed important by each respective organization, including legislation fixing natural gas pipeline leaks, improving water and wastewater infrastructure, and maintaining funding for existing parks and nature preserves. Other parts of the score were derived from a legislators receptiveness to meet with local citizens on environmental issues, and their overall philosophy on environmental protection and conservation.

"I am proud to have earned these high marks" said Representative Miceli on receiving the reports. "Massachusetts has a varied environment, and ensuring that we preserve the Commonwealth's natural beauty and resources for the next generation is an important priority, and one that is frankly, just plain common sense to support."

Mass Audubon was established in 1896 with a goal to preserve the Commonwealth's outdoors as well as advocate for natural preservation on a national scale. They currently operate 16 wildlife sanctuaries across the state as well as organize and lobby. The Environmental League of Massachusetts is a non-profit organization which safeguards the land, water, and air of the state and also lobbies for preservation of public lands.

Historical Society to host a musical on May 15

The Tewksbury Historical Society invites all of Tewksbury and surrounding towns to a historical and musical evening entitled "Swinging Our Way to Victory: The Music of the World War II Era" featuring Professor Kevin Comtois on May 15 starting at 7:00pm.

This informative but also "swinging" story will be told at the Tewksbury Senior Center. This is a benefit for the Tewksbury Historical Society's Building and Acquisition Fund.

Comtois will play snippets of songs from Bennie Goodman, Frank Sinatra, Billie Holiday and many others who entertained the States while our men and women were at war.

The "Music of the World War II Era" will focus on individual pieces of music, lyrics & the people who created them and their relationship to World War II. They played an important role in our culture of that time during World War II. This presentation includes recorded music, film clips and still images.

The Society will have a brief social time after the program with refreshments and the Society Store will offer historical books and pictures for sale. You may meet the performer, Mr. Comtois after his performance. The program is supported in part by the Salem 5 Bank.

Ticket prices are $8.00 for non-members and $7.00 for Society members. Tickets are on sale at the Library on the Tuesday, May 12 (Tuesday in the lobby) from 1:00- 5:00pm. Tickets may also be reserved by emailing: tewksburyhistoricalsociety@msn.com and may be picked up and paid for at the "Will Call" Table in the Senior Center the night of the performance. Tickets will be available for sale at the door.

You, too, can be a published author, just like Dave Riese, as seen on the May Book Stew. Courtesy Photo

"Book Stew" Set Things To Writes!

WILMINGTON - In the May episode of Book Stew, two independent, or self-published, authors join host Eileen MacDougall to share their tales of hard work and their secrets to having your book on Amazon, in the library, or gracing a bookstore window.

Dave Riese is a Wilmington resident whose "Echo From Mount Royal" is a novel built around a core of truth. A lunchtime companion told Dave the shattering story of her first romance in Montreal in the 1950s, out of which Dave created a universe of misplaced loyalty and betrayal.

Barbara Boudreau of Gloucester can usually be found working as a wildlife interpreter in Massachusetts state parks, but on a sailing trip in the Bahamas, "The Frenchman" blossomed from a dream in which a heist brings together a Las Vegas mother of two and a man on the lam.

The show can be viewed on WCTV on Thursday, May 14th at 7 AM and 7 PM, on Saturday, May 16th at 2 PM, on Monday, May 18th at 5 PM and on Tuesday May 19th at 1 PM, with the same schedule repeating throughout the month. There is also a link to the program on the Wilmington Memorial Library's website http://www.wilmlibrary.org/blogs.

The students from Mrs. Decarolis' Kindergarten class enjoys New England Aquariums "Tidal Pools Alive" program at the Heath Brook.

This program is supported in part by a grant from the Tewksbury Cultural Council, a local agency which is supported by the Massachusetts Cultural Council, a state agency. BruceHilliard.com

Tuesday, May 26, 7 pm

Members of the Col. Charles McGee Chapter of the Tuskegee Airmen from Hanscom Air Force Base will present a program on the history of the Tuskegee Airmen. The Tuskegee airmen were the first black servicemen to serve as military aviators in the U.S. armed forces, flying with distinction during World War II. Before 1940, African Americans were barred from flying for the U.S. military. The highly publicized successes of the Tuskegee Airmen helped pave the way for the eventual integration of the U.S. armed forces under President Harry Truman in 1948.

ers that provide money to various town outreach programs. Ann is also a member of the Wilmington Family Counseling Services, the Sarah Carter Lecture Committee, volunteers at the Book Store Next Door, Mission of Deeds, Aleppo Shrine events, and provides meals and more at the Dwelling Place in Woburn and St. Paul's of Lowell, providing meals (including cooking and serving) to 150+ people two-three times a month. She also served as a Girl Scout leader.

The Penny's noted in their nominating letter, "What is most impressive about Ann's volunteer service is that she not only is an outstanding leader and organizer, but a hard-working and dedicated "member of the team" as well."

"Ann serves the citizens of Wilmington in countless ways, always in a most gracious, unassuming, and humble way, never seeking recognition but genuinely wanting to just help others. She is a talented, gifted leader, teacher, volunteer and friend, always ready to take charge or lend a hand whenever she is needed. She is an inspiration to us all, a treasure to her town and to all who know her - certainly a most fitting "Good Gal."

"It was quite a surprise. She thought she was a decoy again for someone else," said Joan Searfoss, the 2000 Good Guy. "She was the decoy for Bernie Nally last year."

"There again, we had so many worthy nominations this year, which speaks really wonderfully about the community. It's hard when you have to limit it to one. There are nominations not selected this year, so they may be re-nominated next year. There are just so many to choose from. It's a wonderful tradition that was started."

Searfoss told the crowd assembled Friday about Ann's background, growing up in the Midwest.

"Ann's father was a farmer in Indiana. He grew corn, soy beans and raised sheep and cattle. He attended Seminary in Missouri, but had to leave school to run the family farm. He and his wife Lucile were as active in their church as Ann and Dave have been in their church. Ann is one of four siblings, all active in their churches and communities in Indiana. All four graduated first in their respective class."

In attendance from St. Onge's family was her son, Jeffrey, his wife Jenny, and their daughter Kate (5 months) who flew in from Newburyport, California.

Daughter Jennifer Kuenzel and her husband, Michael, flew in from Charleroi, Pennsylvania along with their children David (17) and Anna (13).

Ann's brother R.T. Henke and wife Ginny are from Bremen, in Northern Indiana. R.T. and Ginny became active in volunteering in and around their community, as did Ann. In fact, both R.T. and Ginny were recognized as Citizens of the Year for their great work, an equivalent award to our Good Guy of the Year, so obviously the ethic of service to community runs in the family.

Also on hand were St. Onge's niece Susan Henke and her husband, Martin, from North Andover, MA along with their children Cameron (17) and Anna (13).

Champoux new chair

Selectman Lou Cimaglia, "Madam Chair I just want to say your leadership was just wonderful for the past year."

Selectman Michael McCoy said, "I think everything's gone great, and you've done a fantastic job. I think you've been very fair to the residents out there, while not everyone has been fair to you." McCoy was no doubt referencing resident Kevin MacDonald who has been contentious in his dealings with O'Connell in the past.

Selectman Michael Newhouse, added, "The manner in which you have handled difficult aspects of chairing a meeting has been exemplary. It's a difficult task in trying to ensure that everyone has the opportunity to be heard in a public forum while still demanding that folks respect the process and other people's right to be heard in a public forum. It's not easy to sit in that chair, this past year, I think at times, it's been particularly difficult."

And last but not least, Selectman and new Chairman Michael Champoux added to the comments, "I certainly have learned a lot from you, Judy, and the poise and grace with which you handle very difficult situations, particularly at the end of our meetings, generally, and I admire you greatly."

Newhouse then began the process of reorganization. "It's my recollection, that for the past several years each and every year we've all acknowledged that everyone who sits here is more than capable of serving as the chair and chairing these meetings" adding, "I know the past couple of years, Mr. Champoux has expressed an interest, and I just want to ask him if he's interested this year in being the Chair."

Champoux answered, "Yes, I am still interested, thank you Mike."

The vote for Champoux as the new Chairman of the Board was unanimous.

For his part, Champoux said, "I'll simply say, I'm deserving of the job, and I sincerely appreciate the confidence that you place in me."

In other news, Selectman and Veterans' Agent Lou Cimaglia has announced that the Memorial Day Parade will begin at 10:00 am the Wilmington Market Basket parking lot on Monday, May 25th with the Memorial Day ceremony taking place at 11:00 am at the Wildwood Cemetery.

Cimaglia, added, "That whole weekend we have different scheduled events. Saturday morning we will be decorating all the veteran's graves at the Wildwood Ceremony, and on Sunday, there will be a dedication ceremony. Also, May is Military Month, and thank you for supporting all the veterans. Wilmington has been very patriotic and very supportive of veterans and their causes."

Champoux concluded, "I look forward to working with the people of Wilmington."

Panel helps victims take control movement to end domestic violence.

The organization's work began in the early 1970s, when four Somerville, Massachusetts women started a grassroots effort to support victims of domestic violence by opening their own homes as safe havens for women fleeing abuse. In 1974, these "founding mothers" formed RESPOND. For over 40 years RESPOND has provided life-saving shelter, support services, training and education to more than 100,000 members of the community. Services are free and confidential, and available to all survivors of domestic abuse.

Melendez asked, "What do you think domestic violence is?" Through the discussion, the attendees learned that domestic violence, called DV by Melendez, is not just about physical violence. While that type of violence sadly thrives in our world overall, there are other forms of abuse just as harmful and overwhelming to the victim.

Melendez explained that DV is power over another in a relationship, that relationship being a husband, wife, child, parent or even a roommate. "Anyone can be a victim," said Melendez, citing that DV is not just abuse of women, but men, children, and too often, the elderly, many times by their own children.

The organization's questions are both simple and astonishingly alarming. An abuser might be asked if they have been hit, kicked, shoved, strangled or hurt in any other physical way, but there are many other ways abusers inflict pain. Screaming, insulting, ridiculing and criticizing are just a few tactics typical of abusers. While the victim is not physically hurt, the brutality of those acts is no less damaging.

Abusers are also manipulative in that they will incorporate any way they can to keep their victim "in line." Often, the victim is kept from friends or family, coerced into sexual activity against their will, stalked, restricted, and blamed for the abuser's problems.

These are just some of the ways a person might be victimized, and sadly, these and even more high risk behaviors can constitute drastic measures, such as moving to a shelter or leaving the area altogether.

High risk concerns include access to weapons, violent or obsessive jealousy, threats to kill the victim, and violence exacerbated by drug and alcohol abuse.

One of RESPOND, Inc.'s primary remediation tactics is to provide access to an emergency shelter. Melendez explained that currently, a shelter can house up to 21 families, and victims are assigned a case worker.

Also available, is a 24 hour Hotline Service, which is free and confidential and provides information, resources and support.

"RESPOND, Inc. is a community-based program," said Melendez, and reminded the group that October is Domestic Violence Month. Melendez shared some of the other benefits of RESPOND, Inc. There are support groups on Monday evenings, at 6:30, for example, and at 7:30 a journaling group, a therapeutic way to help victims heal.

Melendez told the group that lots of people are still in their abusive situation. One resident asked what to do if a victim needed a safe place to go, but needed to stay in the town because of children and other ties.

Melendez explained there is a way to get around the problem, citing the McKinney-Vento Act, established in 1987 to provide assistance to the homeless and to shelters, and that through the Act, there are now ways to have children bused from the confidential location to their schools.

Also, through RESPOND, case managers can pick up at safe locations or provide free bussing, and in many cases, free hotel services are available.

Detective Nally spoke on what happens when a victim calls 911. "You really have to get to the bottom and get the aggressor," said Nally, adding, "If we [Wilmington Police] feel there is physical abuse, we will make an arrest."

Attorney Mark Perkins discussed restraining and stay-away, no contact orders. "I strongly advise no contact on the part of the abuser," adding, "If you violate a restraining order, you're arrested. It goes from civil to criminal."

Nally agreed, weighing in, "That includes using others to contact the person, and social media," adding, "Unfortunately, an abuser using a computer and a different name might be harder to find without a tech savvy person assisting."

Perkins said, giving a ray of hope, "Frankly, more and more people are taking control and getting help."

T-shirts were displayed on the far wall, with slogans highlighting the topic, such as "Wife Beating is Not Okay," and brochures and wrist bands were also available. RESPOND, Inc.'s 24/7 Hotline number is 617-623-5900 and can be accessed online at www.respond-inc.org.

"Save the Monarchs"

within the theme of "making this world a better place," and they chose the dwindling Monarch population. Other topics included learning about bees and how they help the environment, and preserving water.

The girls have been learning about the Monarch, why the population is dwindling, and ways they can help, including providing milkweed seeds to the public, the only plant upon which the Monarchs will lay their eggs. Part of the Troop's project is to tell the public about the Monarchs.

The group was struck when they visited the Butterfly Museum in Westford, MA to find they had no Monarchs left.

Troop member Marina Feeney told the Crier, "There were no Monarchs because they're so rare."

Troop member and daughter of co-leader Pam Southern, Ellie Southern said, "The [Monarch] caterpillars eat milkweed because it makes them poisonous to predators."

Ms. Southern is correct. Monarch caterpillars in their larval stage feed almost exclusively on milkweed, and as adults, get their nutrients from the nectar of flowers. The Monarch will always return to areas rich in milkweed to lay their eggs upon the plant. The milkweed the Monarchs feed on as caterpillars is actually a poisonous toxin and is stored in their bodies, producing a terrible taste and making them inedible to predators.

The main problem is the reduction in milkweed. The girls had learned there are companies out there spraying pesticides that are killing off the milkweed where Monarchs lay their eggs. "We think they should get arrested," said troop member Feeney.

The troop leaders brought in a guest speaker to talk to the girls about the dangers of pesticides. Allison Brooks discussed her concerns about how spraying kills the milkweed plants. A strong opponent of spraying, Brooks told the Crier, "I spoke with DPW Director Michael Woods, and the Town sprays safely in Wilmington."

Brooks said of Woods, "He handled it right away. He was fantastic."

Brooks' further expressed her concerns, citing the popular spray Roundup, which she claims contributes to sterility in males, autism and allergies, among other issues, and generated petitions through the website Moveon.org.

She told the Troop, "The biggest reason I'm doing this is for you guys," adding, "You guys are gonna help us and not spread pesticides, right?" The girls answered with a resounding, "No!"

Now the girls are handing out milkweed seed packs on behalf of LiveMonarchs.org and Got-Milkweed.com.

Monarchs are identified by their distinct orange, black and white wings. The Monarch butterfly is also known as a milkweed butterfly. Milkweed butterflies are a subfamily called Danainae in the family of Nymphalidae, or brush-footed butterflies. Some 300 species of Danainae exist worldwide, and four are found in North America, the best known milkweed butterfly being the Monarch.

According to a January, 2015 article in Scientific American, the population of the Monarch has dropped "an astonishing 96.5 percent over the past few decades, from an estimated 1 billion in the mid-1990s to just 35 million in early 2014."

"Conservation groups have been worrying about this decline for several years," said the article, and recently, the article reported, "The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (FWS) finally took notice. According to the agency, monarch butterflies may deserve protection under the Endangered Species Act."

These are alarming statistics, and Daisy Troop 87002 wants to help by getting more Monarchs to come back. The girls will be handing out milkweed seeds at Mahoney's Garden Center in Tewksbury on Sunday May 17th from 1:00 to 3:00pm.

The Troop will also be handing out the seeds between 10:00am and 1:00pm on June 13, 2015. Opening Day of the Wilmington Farmer's Market located on the Swain Green across from the Town Common at 140 Middlesex Ave.

In addition, the Northside PAC (Parent Advisory Committee) has plans to plant a sustainable garden, but have not yet obtained approval, so for now it has been termed a "beautification project." The project, spearheaded by parent, Stephanie Almeda, plans to plant flowers and shrubs, but they must first submit a proposal to the Town.

This project would be done by the parents and students from the Woburn St. and North Intermediate Schools with a plan for a section for a butterfly garden, with plants friendly for many butterflies to be planted by the Girl Scouts, in addition to the Daisies.

Avenge big losses against Melrose and Wakefield

Softball team makes huge jump on the diamond

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

jamiepote@hotmail.com

WILMINGTON - The previous time Wilmington faced Melrose, it was a nightmare 15-3 loss. And the previous night, the 'Cats had another nightmare losing to Burlington 13-1.

So on Thursday night, no one knew what to expect from the very young and inexperienced Wilmington High School Softball team when the team took on Melrose for the second time and featured a line-up consisting of four freshmen, two sophomores and four juniors.

In the bottom of the seventh of a tied game, it was junior Makayla Donahue who sent a fly ball out to the right center gap to score sophomore Jen Dovidio from third as the Wildcats celebrated the walk-off 3-2 victory before the home crowd at Aprile Field.

The win was immense for the Wildcats for many reasons, but none bigger than improving to 6-6 overall and needing four more wins in their final eight games to qualify for the state tournament after missing out in each of the last three years.

"This is huge because we really need every single win we can get to qualify for the tournament," said Donahue.

Donahue came up to the plate with runners at second and third with one out. Dovidio led off the inning reaching first on a dropped throw at first base. She advanced to second when Brittany Garrard beat out a sacrifice bunt. Shannon Horgan put down another bunt moving the runners up a base setting the stage for Donahue - who strangely wasn't intentionally walked despite the next five batters combining to go 0-for-15. Donahue struck a line drive to the right center gap, and despite Dovidio heading straight home before going back to tag, she easily came home to score the game winner giving Wilmington the Wilmington High Sophomore pitcher Jen Dovidio had a huge week leading the Varsity Softball team past Melrose and Wakefield, two teams which defeated the 'Cats by more than ten runs earlier in the season. The Wildcats are now 7-6 overall and need just three more wins to qualify for the tournament after missing it each of the last three years.

impressive win over the same team which won by the Mercy Rule the first go around.

"(Coach Audrey Cabral-Pini) told me to go back, go back and go back because I thought it was going in the gap and it didn't go in the gap," said Dovidio with a big laugh.

Donahue said that she was told to move up in the batter's box, not because the pitcher was blazing fast, but so she would avoid popping up. She did that by sending a hard line drive to the gap for the game winning sacrifice fly ending her 1-for-3 night, including a two-out bases empty double in the fourth inning.

"This is a great win for us especially since they Mercy-Run ruled us the game before," said Cabral-Pini. "I think we play better in the night games. It's the second one we have played and it's been much better. I don't think these girls know how good they really can be. They just play really care free."

Wilmington only managed four hits all game as its top four hitters in the line-up Dovidio, Garrard (on her bunt), Horgan and Donahue all one apiece. But despite the four hits, the team played terrific defense, making just on error.

"We have been practicing really hard," said Donahue. "We have been working on our hitting and defense and we just have improved astronomically."

Melrose took a 2-0 lead in the top of the third on three singles and two stolen bases. The score stayed that way until the bottom of the sixth when Wilmington got its own rally going. Dovidio led things off with a single over the third baseman's head. Garrard put down a sacrifice bunt but the ball was thrown away into right field allowing Dovidio to score and Garrard to advance to third, with no outs. Horgan followed and she reached on an infield single to score Garrard and tie the game up at 2-2.

The score remained the same until Donahue's sacrifice fly won it in the bottom of the seventh.

Dovidio, who scored the game winning run, also was the winning pitcher. She gave up eight singles, no extra base hits, didn't walk a batter, struck out just two batters and got out of several jams including stranding five runners on base including four in scoring position.

She pitched to contact, she got ahead of batters by hitting the corners and she was helped out by good defense, including third baseman Adele Burton, who was a part of seven put outs including a double play to get out of the third inning.

"This is a huge win, real win," said Dovidio. "We have improved a ton since the first time we faced this team. The defense was (great tonight). We only made one error and usually if we make one, it leads to another and another."

Tenth Annual Pan Mass Kids Bike Event this Sunday

By BRENDAN FOLEY
Sports Correspondent

BrendanMFoley@Outlook.com

WILMINGTON- With brilliant sun and warm skies finally here to stay, the time is perfect for the Pan Mass Challenge Kids Ride.

Sunday will see the 10th annual Wilmington-Andover Kids' Ride, with children from all the local communities expected to turn out for a day of fun and charity, all to support the Dana Farber Institute in its fight against cancer. Families could not ask for a better event to enjoy together.

The Pan Mass Challenge is the No. 1 athletic fundraiser in the world, raising upwards of $450 million over the course of 35 years. The Kids Ride was created to provide children a chance to participate in the experience of the ride and contribute to the charitable cause.

"It's a fun day," said event organizer and longtime WHS varsity girls soccer coach Sue Hendee. "We have a lot of great things set up. We have a DJ and face painting and refreshments and a raffle for kids who have raised money."

And these children can have a very real impact on the lives of other children. At last year's Kids' Ride, well over a hundred children participated, with over 90 just from Wilmington alone. The children raised over $18,000, bringing the nine year total to over $135,000.

With every penny of that going towards the Dana-Farber institute, participation in the race can have immediate, lasting effects on children fighting cancer.

The ride is scheduled for between 9-11 am and will be held at the Boutwell. Carter Lane is being shut down just for the event, so there will no oncoming traffic to contend with. The ride welcomes children from pre-kindergarten through fifth grade.

Kindergarteners and first graders will ride from 9 to 9:30 a.m., second and third graders will ride from 9:45 to 10:30 a.m., and fourth through sixth graders will ride from 10:45-11:45. Children can ride the course as many times as they can in the allotted time.

And the little ones can get in on the excitement too, as the tennis courts will be cleared for a Tykes On Trikes event, encouraging toddlers to tackle an obstacle course on trikes, big wheels, or even in the backs of wagons. No matter the age, there is something for everyone to enjoy.

The race organizers are hoping to raise another $18,000 this year, and to do this they have created a series of raffles which can be entered if registrants raise a minimum of $25 over the registration fee.

The kids ride has proved to be incredibly important to the lives of those who organize and participate in it. Hendee has not only shepherded the kids ride, but she has ridden in the Pan Mass

Challenge many times over the last 25 years.

Co-founder of the kids ride, Carolyn Priem, has an even more personal connection, as her son was treated at the Jimmy Fund Clinic and has gone on to be a healthy high school student.

"A lot of people say that once you've ridden in the Pan Mass Challenge, you are in for life," Hendee laughed.

It is Hendee's hope that everyone who participates in the ride will have a full and unique experience. With so many events and activities for the whole family to enjoy, everyone can come away from the kids ride with a different favorite.

"I think it's the whole experience," Hendee said. "For some kids, they like the hot dogs and popsicles. Other kids like riding their bike, other kids like listening to the music. It's really the whole package."

Registration is $15 and can be completed online at <http://www.kids.pmc.org/wilmington.aspx>.

This Sunday, the 10th annual Kids Pan Mass Bike Event will be held at the Boutwell School. (courtesy photo).

Guaranteed to face Redmen once

Wildcat Football program switches playoff divisions

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

sports@yourtowncrier.com

In its three years of existence the MIAA Football Playoff system has received its share of criticism, one of the biggest ones being that many teams would be forced to face opponents two or three times during the season, including many rival teams being forced to face each other in a playoff game prior to their traditional Thanksgiving Day matchup.

On Monday, the Massachusetts High School Football Coaches Association (MHSFCA) took steps to avoid such a scenario, voting by a 15-2 margin for a minor realignment in Division 3.

One of the two schools affected by the change will be Wilmington High, who will switch places with Winchester and move from Division 3 Northeast to the Northwest, while Winchester will move from the Northwest to the Northeast.

The realignment was spurred on at least in part by the fact that Winchester was forced to take on arch rival Woburn three times last season, once as a Middlesex League Liberty Division game, once in a Division 3 Northwest playoff game and then in their traditional Thanksgiving Day matchup, which for many years had been their only meeting of the season.

The move also takes Wilmington out of being in the same division as arch rival Tewksbury, who will remain in Division 3 Northeast.

While Wilmington never had to face the Redmen in a playoff game prior to Thanksgiving, the specter of such a matchup always loomed for both schools, neither of whom liked the potential for diminishing the intensity of their traditional matchup.

Division 3 Northwest will now consist of Concord-Carlisle, Woburn, Arlington, Melrose, Wayland, Wakefield, Burlington, Medford, Belmont and Boston Latin, along with Wilmington.

"A move to the Northwest decreases our chances of playing Tewksbury twice, it's also better for Winchester in that they don't have to play Woburn two or three times," Wilmington coach Mike Barry said. "Also, geographically the Northwest makes more sense for us."

Barry is definitely correct there. In fact, when realignment originally took place back in 2012, Wilmington was set to be in the Northwest before being switched to the Northeast where they were lumped in with teams such as Revere, Somerville, Danvers and Gloucester.

With the switch to the Northwest, they will instead be aligned with teams such as Burlington, Wakefield and Melrose for potential playoff matchups, or even non-playoff matchups in the weeks leading up to Thanksgiving.

Of course the possibility of facing a team twice in one season likely increases for Wilmington under this scenario, as they already face these teams during their regular season matchups as part of the Middlesex League Freedom Division, but it is a drawback that Wilmington Athletic Director Ed Harrison is willing to take, considering the other benefits.

Last season, Wilmington faced Revere and Somerville in back to back weeks after being eliminated from the playoff, not exactly traditional rivals for the Wildcats.

"I would rather have the opportunity to play Burlington, Wakefield or Melrose a second time or league members Woburn, Arlington or Belmont once than to travel to Revere, Somerville, Beverly, Gloucester, Danvers, Marblehead or Salem," Harrison said.

Barry agrees, noting that at least there will be some type of rivalry during the playoff/non-playoff games leading up to Thanksgiving.

"We don't want to play any team twice, but with the system we have now, it's better for us to play a team we have some type of relationship with," Barry said. "Previously, we were the only Middlesex team in the Northeast."

Peterson picks up a win but Oberg picks up first loss

By JAMIE POTE

jamiepote@hotmail.com
Both Wilmington resident Stephen Peterson and Tewksbury's Scott Oberg continued their professional pitching days this past week.

Peterson, a member of the High-A Brevard County Manatees of the Milwaukee Brewers system, appeared in two games, including earning a three-inning save back on May 7th in the team's 8-4 win over the Tampa Yankees. In that game he gave up two earned runs, but struck out three in three innings to get the save.

He came back on May 11th and tossed two scoreless innings giving up a hit and striking out one in the team's 7-6 loss to the Bradenton Marauders.

For the season, Peterson has made 9 appearances with a 2-1 record including one save and an ERA of 2.87. In 15.2 innings, he has given up 14 hits, 6 runs, 5 earned and 3 home runs, while walking 7 and striking out 10.

In his third season with the team, he has a combined record of 12-6 in 84 appearances.

As for Oberg, he made three more appearances for the Colorado Rockies' Major League squad. Back on May 6th, in the team's double-header after one of many rain out this week, he appeared in both games, recording one out in each appearance as the Rockies dropped both games.

Then on May 10th, Oberg took his first loss of his young career. After coming on to strike out two batters in the seventh inning, he gave up a hit and a home run to Justin Turner of the Dodgers in a tied game. Los Angeles went on to win the game 9-5.

On the season, Oberg has appeared in 11 games tossing 8.2 innings, giving up 13 hits, 9 runs, 7 earned and 5 home runs, while walking one and striking out 10. Of his 9 runs, 7 have come against the Dodgers.

'Cats Win Seventh

On Monday night, back at Aprile Field, Wilmington defeated Wakefield, 2-0, to improve to 7-6. The previous times these two teams met, the Warriors (11-4) came away with a 13-4 win.

Dovidio got out of a jam in the first inning which seemed to have turned the game around. With runners at second and third and no outs, she struck out the next two batters before retiring the third on a groundball.

Then in the second inning, center fielder Brittany Garrard threw out a runner trying to advance to third for another huge play.

With the game scoreless, Wilmington scored both of its runs in the bottom of the fifth. Dana Goulet led off with a bunt single. She then advanced two bases when Adele Burton's bunt was mishandled at first putting two runners on. Dovidio then hit a sacrifice fly to score Goulet, and then Burton scored on a RBI single by Horgan.

"Great defense and small ball were the keys to this victory," said Cabral-Pini. "Liz Gordon had a great defensive game registering five putouts."

Also, Kieran continued her hot streak at the plate finishing 2-for-3.

Redmen overtake Wildcats; Remain Red-Hot on the Diamond

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

jamiepote@hotmail.com

WILMINGTON - Ahead by a run in the bottom of the seventh, and Wilmington threatening with runners at the corners and one out, senior catcher Rob Cutone came through with a big throw to second base to nail down Evan Raffi trying to steal, before Jake Scanlan followed by getting a fly ball out to give Tewksbury a 3-2 win over Wilmington in a non-league baseball game played Saturday afternoon in sunny skies at the North Intermediate School.

Tewksbury, which was coming off an exciting come from behind win over North Andover two days earlier, swept the two game series over the 'Cats and improved to 4-7 on the season, but more importantly qualified for the Division 2 North State Tournament by the Sullivan Rule (4-1 record against Division 2 teams). Wilmington fell to 6-5 on the season.

"We needed this one to get into the state tournament so it's good that we don't have to sweat until the end (of the regular season)," said Tewksbury interim coach Dave Harne. "(Beating North Andover) was obviously huge and I think that set the tone for today. I think the kids gained some confidence from that game heading into today. But we came out a little flat today, which we always seem to do which kills me, but we got a few hits when we needed them. It would have been nice to get the last two in the last inning but we couldn't do that so it is what it is."

Ahead 3-1 going to the last of the seventh, Harne called on flame thrower Scanlan to close out the game. After striking out the first batter he faced, Scanlan gave up a single to center field by Jamie Hill. Connor Zaya came on to pinch run. Jackson Gillis followed with a tailor-made double play but the ball was booted and Wilmington had runners at first and second with one out. Evan Raffi kept things going with a single to left center to score Zaya and send Gillis to third. Then two pitches later, Raffi tried stealing second and was thrown out on a great throw from Cutone, and that came before Matt Spurr, who was down 0-2 in the count, sent a fly ball to center field which would have easily scored Gillis with the tying run.

"It was really they ran into the out and I think they realized that after as (Raffi) tried to stop (to get into a run down)," said Harne. "But we caught them and for once it wasn't us who made the error, and plus it was a great throw (from Cutone)."

Raffi did slow up a bit before the bag, which begged the question was it a delayed steal with the hopes of Gillis scoring from third?

"No, I wanted him to steal the base," said Caira, eluding to the fact that Wilmington was 3-for-3 in stolen base attempts before that. "I don't know if (Raffi) misread the sign because he started slowing down but it was a straight out steal. He's quick enough to steal the base. We were down (by a run) and it was a gamble but you're talking about maybe (an ill-advised) thrown ball gets the runner in, who knows? But our runner at third base should have been off running once he saw the ball go over the pitcher's head (to second base) and he didn't, and he stood there and watched.

"We didn't execute at all today. We had a couple of bunt plays that we didn't get down. That really hurt us. First and second, no outs and we can't get the bunt down. Instead we get a fly ball and waste and out."

Wilmington - both teams really - squandered all kinds of chances to score throughout the game. The Wildcats left ten runners on base including eight in scoring position, had a runner thrown out at home on a ground ball fielder's choice, had another one picked off on an earlier delayed steal attempt, and then Raffi in the seventh.

"We left too many runners on base and that's the name of the story," said Caira. "We left too many runners, our defense wasn't as good as it has been all season as we didn't make some of the plays today that we usually make. Matt (Woods) pitched a decent game, I thought, but we just didn't support him (with runs). If we make that ground ball play in the first inning, they don't score and it's a different game and then we left the bases loaded in the bottom of the first inning. We played a decent team it's just we didn't do what we were supposed to do and that hurt."

Tewksbury got on the board first scoring an unearned run in the top of the first. With two outs and the bases empty, Brett Morris reached on a two-base infield error and then scored on a RBI double by Joe Csokmay. Wilmington tied the game up at 1-1 in the home half on two hits and two walks, including Hill taking a 1-2 pitch to left field to score Brian Cavanaugh, who started the rally with a single past first before stealing second.

The score remained 1-1 until Tewksbury scored single runs in the top of the fourth and fifth innings. In the fourth, Scanlan singled and went to second on a wild pitch before scoring on a RBI single by Morris. In the sixth, Ryan Meade singled, went to second on a sacrifice bunt by Brett McAllister and then scored on a RBI double over the left fielder's head by No. 9 hitter Ryan Bednarek.

Tewksbury's starting pitcher Brendan Imonte recorded the first two outs in the bottom of the fifth before walking Raffi on four straight pitches. He came out after throwing 103 pitches, giving up one earned run on six hits, while walking four and striking out four and earned the win. Andrew Wallace came in to strike out the last batter in the fifth, before giving up a harmless single and walk in the sixth and got out of the jam by a nice double play by Scanlan at short-stop.

"(Imonte) still has to eliminate the walks but he did better today," said Harne. "Wallace came in and did his job. The relief pitching has been great this year. They have picked up the slack. We have had spotty starts for the most part since the beginning of the season but since maybe the fifth game of the season the starters have been better but the relievers have done a really nice job for us."

Tewksbury left runners at second and third with one out in the top of the seventh, and ended the game leaving 11 runners on base including eight in scoring position.

"(Leaving so many runners on base is) still a concern and has been a concern the whole time," said Harne. "We struggle getting the timely hi we need or getting the fly ball we need (to score a run). We end up having a lot of guys on second (and third base) and we just can't seem to get them in. We have to do a better job with that."

Csokmay and Jack Theriault had two hits each for Tewksbury, while Hill was the only Wilmington player with multiple hits. Woods fell for the first time this season to 3-1, as he tossed 5.1 innings giving up two earned runs on eight hits, while walking three and striking out four.

Last Wednesday, Wilmington defeated Burlington 9-7. Freshman Graham Smith delivered a three-run inside the park home run, his second round-tripper of the season.

Brian Cavanaugh went 2-for-4 with 3 runs scored, while Jamie Hill went 2-for-5 with 2 RBI. Senior Joe Scurto picked up the win, going 2 innings in relief of starter Jackson Gillis.

On Monday, Wilmington was dominated by Wakefield, 14-3, to fall to 6-6 overall. Jamie Hill belted a home run in the loss.

WILMINGTON- The Wilmington High School Girls Lacrosse team is still in the hunt for their first victory of the season.

After 11 games, the Wildcats have only a tie against Stoneham to their credit, dropping their other ten games for an overall record of 0-10-1.

With only four regular season games remaining as of press time, the Wildcats will need to hustle if they want to avoid being the first winless incarnation of the program since 2008.

Head coach Sarah Simpson attributes much of the team's struggles to the mental side of the game.

"(We) just get down a few goals and then the mental game takes over," Simpson said. "We're finding that that's something that's difficult to bounce back from this season."

She added that the girls' "passion" is a reason for why games often spin out of their favor quickly.

"I think I have a very passionate team this year and, unfortunately, they are affected by a lot," Simpson said. "It's been an adjustment for me as a coach and for a lot of the players."

Many of the season's problems reared their head in Monday's game against Reading. The Wildcats only managed one goal during the contest, finishing with a final score of 17-1. Ashley Warren provided the lone Wildcat goal.

"I don't think we were transitioning the ball very well," Simpson said. "Our midfield wasn't getting the ball back in time and that really hurt us against a team like Reading."

As she has on several occasions, Simpson reserved praise for the work done by the Wildcat defense, which she credited with keeping Wilmington in the game for as long as they did.

"Our defense was fantastic," Simpson said. "Our defense is amazing. We held them for the first five or six minutes. They had possession in our zone and we held them."

Simpson pointed to players like Jenny Holloran and Caroline Albanese as defensive players that held the Reading offense at bay for as long as possible. But Wilmington's offensive problems continued to pile the team into a whole from which they could not extract themselves.

The home game at Reading closed out a very difficult week for the Wildcats. They fell hard against both Winchester and Wakefield last week, losing both games by the same 16-2 scores. More and more, it seems like the Stoneham tie was an isolated incident in an otherwise dreary season. But even that near-victory betrayed evidence of the team's ongoing problems.

"It was a more even game, experience wise," Simpson said, of the Stoneham game. "But even that game, we were up 6-1 and had that comfortable lead. Stoneham came in the second half and really wanted it and made up those goals."

Many of the problems Simpson describes with the team's transitioning and endurance have been present with the Wildcats throughout the year.

In the early goings, Simpson chalked these problems up to illness, injury, and a number of players being distracted with travel and school. But now, with a unified team operating at close to full strength, the Wildcats can still not seem to shake their doldrums. Not even rigorous practices can break the team loose.

"We do a lot of work in practice, a lot of strength and agility," Simpson said. "A lot of the problem is just endurance, and getting winded, and that's something that we're going to work a lot harder on the off season."

The Wildcats now have only five games remaining in the season. After going up against Watertown (10-3-1) on Wednesday after press time, they will face Stoneham (0-8), Tewksbury (4-9-1), Melrose (6-6-1) and finally Pentucket (4-2).

Rough week on the tennis courts

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

sports@yourtowncrier.com

It was a bit of a rough week for the Wilmington High Girls Tennis team as they suffered three losses to some very good Middlesex League competition.

The Wildcats dropped a pair of 5-0 decisions to Wakefield and Burlington last Thursday and Friday, respectively, before bouncing back with a much better effort in a 3-2 loss to Melrose on Monday.

Despite the losses, Wilmington coach Matt Hackett has been impressed with the effort he has seen from his team in each match, and likes the way they have maintained their focus despite going through a tough stretch.

The girls are doing the best they can under the circumstances," Hackett said. "Losing isn't fun but they are trying to focus on all the things they are doing well and all the things they are improving on. The effort has been there. The desire has been there."

That effort and desire was never more evident than in their 3-2 loss to Melrose on Monday. The Wildcats got wins on the day from sophomore Sam Maragioglio in number one singles and sophomore Christina Woods in third singles, with each of them rolling to victory as Maragioglio earned a 6-2, 6-1 straight set victory and Woods stormed to a 6-1, 6-0 victory.

"I knew Melrose would be a close match. We won a close one a few weeks ago. They won a close one this time," Hackett said. "Sam played her best match of the year. Her opponent was solid with a few holes in her game. Sam was clearly challenged yet she stayed poised and got the result she wanted."

"Christina has continued her solid adjustment to singles. She played long points, getting almost everything back, and forcing her opponent to make the mistakes and tire out."

Junior Jess Nussbaum actually played very well in second singles as well, despite not being able to come away with the victory, dropping a very hard fought 7-6 (12-10), 6-3 decision.

In second doubles the combination of juniors Ruju Trivadi and Vanessa D'Angelo also put up quite the battle before dropping a 6-3, 7-6 (7-5) decision.

"Second doubles really fought hard. It was a back and forth affair and there were many times they could have crumbled and didn't," Hackett said. "They stayed strong and fought until the end."

The first doubles combination of seniors Rachel Cummings and Bridget Cadogan dropped a 6-0, 6-3 decision.

The Wildcats will try to turn things around this week when they travel to Wakefield on Wednesday, host Watertown on Friday, and hit the road once next Monday to take on Stoneham.

BOYS TENNIS

The Boys Tennis team also had a rough week, going through the gauntlet of the top teams in the Middlesex League and coming away with an 0-3 record, dropping 5-0 decisions to Winchester last Wednesday and Friday, respectively, and suffering another 5-0 loss to Melrose on Monday.

There were flashes of brilliance in each of the three losses, particularly in the Melrose match, where their top two singles players dropped close three set decisions.

In first singles, senior co-captain Justin Wright fell by a 6-3, 0-6, 7-5 score, coming ever so close to picking up the upset victory.

"Justin played real well," Wilmington coach Rob Mailey said. "It really could have gone either way, but the other kid just got some big points at the end."

In second singles, fellow Wildcats senior co-captain Robbie Mailey dropped a 6-3, 6-7, 6-4 decision in another hard fought, back and forth match.

"Robbie also did a real good job," Mailey said. "It was a real high match and Robbie played well, he just came up a little bit short."

The Wildcats also got a strong effort in first doubles where the team of sophomore Evan Meyers and senior Jon Mackinnon lost by a score of 6-4, 6-4.

"Both sets were tied at four all and we really had a chance to win," Mailey said. "The other team was just a little more aggressive on the big points."

In the Wildcats 5-0 loss to Burlington last Friday, they got a great effort in second doubles where Liam Reynolds and Quinton Foley fought hard before losing by a score of 2-6, 6-2, 6-3.

While he would have liked to see his team play better, Mailey knows that his team probably went through what will likely be their toughest stretch of the season.

The Wildcats will look to end their losing streak this week, starting on Wednesday when they host Wakefield, before traveling to Watertown on Friday and returning home to host Stoneham next Monday.

"This week should start some of our more competitive matches," Mailey said. "We will be motivated to play Wakefield, because they are the team that knocked us out of contention for the state tournament last season, and we beat Watertown earlier this season, so we know we can compete with them."

But while these matches are certainly more winnable than their previous three, Mailey knows his team cannot let up at regardless of the competition. With seven matches left in the season and a 4-7 record, they are not in position to take any opponent lightly.

"We talk about that all the time, that our schedule will have its very tough portions and the easier portions,"

Mailey said. "But it doesn't matter who we play, we have to bring all our horses."

TMHS Girls Lacrosse

Golini nets five as Redmen trounce Lowell

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

jamiepote@hotmail.com
TEWKSBURY - When it comes to the early part of May, it's extremely vital that teams are in tip-top shape considering the warmer weather and the second half of the season is coming around. Well on a very hot, muggy sunny Thursday afternoon, it was the conditioning of Tewksbury which was the difference in a second half domination.

The Redmen Girls Lacrosse team took a four-goal halftime lead and completely blew the doors open against Lowell, outscoring the Red Raiders 6-1 in the second half en route to Tewksbury's 16-7 victory over Merrimack Valley Conference rival Lowell held at the new TMHS Turf Field.

Freshman Kelly Golini paced the offense scoring six goals helping Tewksbury improve its record to 4-8-1 on the season. The Redmen have defeated Lowell twice as well as Dracut and Swampscott, while ending in a tie with Melrose.

On Monday, Tewksbury fell to Andover 17-7 to fall to 4-9-1.

With six games left on the season, it would seem tough for the Redmen to qualify for the state tournament with a .500 record, but the team could get in by the Sullivan Rule if it beats both Wilmington and Swampscott in upcoming games and finishes 2-2-1 against Division 2 teams including Melrose, Burlington and Bedford.

This season Tewksbury has taken its lumps against some iron teams such as North Andover, Bedford (twice), Chelmsford and Central Catholic, but have hung in there very well against the other teams, losing to Burlington, Methuen and Haverhill by a combined five goals. The home town program has improved greatly this season and a big part of that is conditioning and that showed on Thursday.

"(Conditioning) is such a huge thing that we work on in practice all season from April vacation on," said head coach Joel McKenna. "We try to make sure that we're in real good shape because it's 90 degrees out here on the turf field and it's really hot out so we want to make sure that we're in better shape than our competition so can pull off half of these games at this point (of the season)."

In some of the team's earlier games, Tewksbury has started out slow, which has cost the Redmen in the end. Thursday Lowell jumped out to a 3-1 lead as Tewksbury wasn't playing together in the first five minutes, before answering with a 6-1 run behind goals from Natalia Styburski, Golini (two), Lindsey McCarthy and Amanda Aylward and Carlye Slavin to go up 7-4 with just under six minutes to go in the first half.

Tewksbury closed out the half ahead 10-6 before totally outplaying Lowell in the second half to secure the victory.

"The first half of our games over the last three weeks have started off slow and that's what we have been working on in practice and emphasizing on starting out with better footing," said McKenna. "(The Tewksbury players) put themselves into holes down by two or three goals and it takes them such a long time to claw back. Today was a little bit better. By the time the second half comes around, it's like they are flipping a switch and we're a different team."

Indeed they were. In the second half, Golini, Aylward, Amanda Brown, Slavin all scored single goals before Delaney Chisholm finished off with two straight making it 16-6 with 11 minutes to go. Neither team generated anything offensively after that until Lowell scored on a meaningless tally with five seconds left in the game.

All in all, Golini led the way with six goals followed by three from Aylward and two each from Slavin and Chisholm. Goalie Susan Aguilar made 5 saves in the net.

Slavin was also very strong throughout the game winning the majority of the face-offs.

"Obviously (face-offs and groundball control are) important in this sport," said McKenna. "It's tough to play defense in this sport because it's a non-contact sport, and you're not wearing padding or anything like that so stick skills, especially off the draw is so important. It's just such a huge, huge thing in girls lacrosse and always will be."

"A lot of the times we get in these track meets and that's another reason why we work so much on conditioning. We stress that point in April and we know the weather is going to get warmer, so we want to be in good shape."

Tewksbury returns to action with four games over a seven day span. On Friday the team travels to Dracut (3:30), and then will follow that up with a night game on Monday night against Wilmington (6:00) before coming home Tuesday afternoon to face Haverhill (3:45) before going back on the road Wednesday to face Swampscott (4:00).

Red Stars and Reign display great soccer skills

Girls Kindergarten:
Chicago Red Stars
vs. Seattle Reign

One could only believe the silence of the crowd was due to the fantastic ball skill of Emma Ebert and Leah Hanafin. However it did not take long for the crowd to cheer as goals were scored by Elizabeth Kulevich and Sara Keck.

The Chicago Red Stars defensive stand made by Isabella Goldstein and Madison O'Donoghue could only be viewed as heroic.

Boys Kindergarten:
Chicago Fire
vs. Houston Dynamo

Nobody stayed home for this action packed game. The Chicago Fire's Ryan Hudd and Jonathan Malley scored, getting the crowd jumping out of their seats.

Outstanding offense by Xavier Rojas De Los Santos and Brady Beldekas set up many scoring chances while Jake Beldekas played flawless defense.

FC Dallas
vs. Colorado Rapids

The fans were energized by this exciting game. Ryan Constantine opened the scoring with two early goals before the team settled into a rhythm. Damian Dencso, Cole Falk, and Daniel Finn supplied offensive pressure while Richard Holland and Cooper O'Shea backed up their efforts on defense.

What has turned out to be a tough Colorado Rapid offense continued their strong work upfront as they out manned FC Dallas for another positive ending. Ryan Archer, Evan Walsh and Cameron Molina got on the scoring board, while Maxwell Bagtaz, Frank Cain and Viraj Patel kept the back strong and the opponent from scoring in another fantastic outing.

Girls Grade 1:
Chicago Red Stars
vs. Seattle Reign

The crowds gathered at the Shawshen fields for this back and forth game. The RedStars led by Maddie Grylika and Ella Dong got the crowd jumping out of their seats. The RedStars started off strong with great offensive pressure from Cate MacDonald and Madelyn Oatis.

Coupled with the steel-like defense of Maria McCarthy, their efforts made for an incredible game. Ali McElligott and Lily King led the scoring charge, while the great defensive effort of Makaila Cella kept the action going to keep the RedStars in the match.

FC Kansas City
vs. Houston Dash

Nobody stayed home for this action packed game. The FC Kansas City's Sara Reppucci scored getting the crowd out of their seats. Outstanding offense by Arianna Fasulo set up many of the scoring chances. The flawless defense of Mackenzie Weatherbee provided great protection throughout the game.

The Houston Dash's Zoey Helbert, Ava Noble, Skylar Nguyen, and Ella O'Connell stayed on their toes creating many scoring opportunities. The play of Maevie Doherty, Abigail Howie, Isabella Rogers and Sadie Winchell shut down the other end of the field on defense that set the tone for this game.

Boys Grade 1:
Colorado Rapids
vs. LA Galaxy

The Colorado Rapids stayed on their toes creating many scoring opportunities by Roman Synott and Cameron Thompson. The play of Dylan Grace and Matthew Driscoll shut down the other end of the field on defense that set the tone for this game. Fantastic ball skill were displayed by Jackson Guy, Ethan Afthim and Quinn Stockman.

Portland Timbers
vs. New England Revs

The air was full of excitement, as the much-anticipated match between Portland Timbers and New England Revs commenced. Fantastic ball skill were displayed by Aidan Largenton and Logan Yautkus resulting in goals by Gavin Burke.

The midfield and defensive play of Ryan Belanger and Jonas Arulraj kept their team in excellent shape. The crowd roared to their feet when Beckett Rosner and Reiley Young made some spectacular saves.

Columbus Crew
vs. NY Red Bulls

Top-Notch play kept people watching this one. Excellent offensive plays by Kevin Pruslin, Isaac Tavares, Dennis Desouza, Alexander D'Anna, Nathan and Ryan applied heavy pressure causing the opponent team to back pedal. Defensive positioning by Isaac Tavares, Ryan and Alexander D'Anna fended off any threat that came thru making it tough for the opponent team.

Dennis Desouza, Kevin Pruslin and Nathan also played a great game in net, keeping the game in hand.

Chicago Fire
vs. Houston Dynamo

The air was full of excitement, as the much-anticipated match between Chicago Fire and Houston Dynamo commenced. Fantastic ball skill were displayed by Nicolas Spinosa resulting in goals by Owen Fitzpatrick and Derek Mulik.

The midfield and defensive play of Adam Veliz kept the Chicago Fire in excellent shape. The crowd roared to their feet when Gavin Dong made some spectacular saves.

Seattle Sounders
vs. DC United

In what could have been confused as a World Cup Match, the Sounders started off strong with great offensive pressure from Callan Stone and Gavin Churchill.

Coupled with the steel-like defense of Josh Uchendu and Colin Dwyer their efforts made for an incredible game. John Mehr and Jacob McCauley scored first for the Sounders while the Ashley Cole-like effort of Adam Brueggman provided solid goal-defending to keep their team alive.

Girls Grade 2:
Chicago Red Stars/Houston
Dash vs. Boston
Breakers/Portland Thorns

In what could have been confused as a World Cup Match, the Red Stars/Dash started off strong with great offensive pressure from Natalie Moretti, Rebecca Hughes, and Madeline Long coupled with the steel like defense of Madison Fenton, Isabella Hart, Abigail Mitchell, and Lorraina Raposa made for an incredible game. Kyra Turner, Eleanor Ragsdale, and Allesandra Delgenio held the mid-field for the Stars/Dash while the outstanding efforts of Delaney Ward and Nikki Clarke were solid in the net to keep their team alive.

In a rare all-star match the Boston Breakers combined with the Portland Thorns to take on the Houston Dash and Chicago

Red Stars.

The crowd was kept on the edge of their seats this week as the Boston Breakers and Portland Thorns, led by the offensive skills of Gabriella Fitzgibbons and Emma Alworth resulted in scoring opportunities by Ivone Agrosó, Lilliann Brooks, Gracie Berrier, and Callie Mccauley. The defense was not to be left out of this one either as Jacklyn Suttie kept the ball out of their zone for much of the game. Timely saves by Alyssa Costantiello and Meredith Card helped strengthen a solid team effort.

Boys Grade 2:

DC United vs. Chicago Fire

On the other side of the ball for the Chicago Fire was an incredible offensive performance by Luca Gabardi and Ben Gibbons, while goals scored by John Gibbons and Connor Lovell got the Fire on the board. With a rock solid defensive stand led by Jack Murphy and J.J. Del Turco the Fire were never out of this game.

The midfield team led by Brennan Walsh could only be classified as awesome. John Pozzi resembled a brick wall while protecting the Fire goal.

Despite missing key contributors Koko Shinohara, Jason Spaniol, and Frankie Greico, DC United played a hard fought game. The offense was led by the always steady Zein Khenifar, Lucas Poirier, and Ethan Schoenholtz. Gavin King, Kyle McDonald, Ryan Muise controlled the midfield and defensive side of the ball for the home team.

New England Revolution
vs. Seattle Sounders

The visiting Seattle Sounders gave the host New England Revolution a battle they will soon not forget. A scoreless tie was broken when the Revolution defensive players were on the attack and Seattle capitalized.

The non-stop running of Corey Taylor, Tyler Marinho and Patrick Maillet was not enough to stop a strong offense. The usually tough Revolution midfielders of Justin Gambable, Kaleb Molina and Oliver Ferrer were outnumbered and the top scorer in Tommy Lewis was constantly stopped shy of scoring. Spencer Bagtaz valiantly defended the net, but Seattle was a strong opponent.

Giants and Braves meet up in Wilmington Little League playFarm League
Giants vs Braves

Strong pitching from the Giants' Jack Bourque and Nathan Caples were aided by equally impressive catching work from the duo of Connor Lovell and Luca Gabardi.

The hitting continued with Jake Carr, Nolan Richardson, Ethan Schoenholtz, and Spencer Talbot all chipping in with some timely bat work.

The Braves' offense was led by Zach Mackiel's booming double, multiple hits from Dylan Alexander, an RBI single by Kevin Pruslin, and another timely hit by Shane Tassone.

Great pitching by Colin Allard and Casey Lanagan was aided by strong play in the field by Shivam Purohit, Spencer Bagtaz, and Andrew Almada among others.

Major League
White Sox 7, Orioles 6

The White Sox overcame a two-run deficit in the last inning to defeat the Orioles 7-6 at Rotary Park. Both teams put up four runs in the first inning and then pitchers Aidan McGrath (White Sox) and Tommy Mallinson (Orioles) silenced the opponent's bats into the fifth inning.

In the bottom of the fifth the Orioles took the lead 6-4 with key hits by Tommy Mallinson and Tyler Newhouse and would have plated more, but a lunging catch at shortstop by Aidan McGrath off a line drive hit by Colin Sainato ended the inning.

Facing defeat, the White Sox rallied in the top of the sixth inning with a leadoff single by Ryan Ackerley starting things off. Later in the inning with runners on second and third Matt Pendenza hit a double plating the two runs to tie the score and then Sean Riley knocked in Pendenza with a seeing eye single to take the lead.

The White Sox Aidan Elkins pitched a one-two-three bottom of the sixth inning to preserve the win for the White Sox in what was a spirited effort by both teams.

Under 9 Girls Lacrosse team excels on Mother's Day

The Wilmington U9 Youth Girls Lacrosse team had their first home game on May 10th vs Lowell. It was 90 degrees and sunny but the girls stayed hydrated and applied lots of sunscreen! They played an amazing Mother's Day game.

Brynne Ebert started the game in goal and played excellent. She is the smallest girl on the team and played as if she was the biggest, making great saves and never giving up. Emma Alworth and Meredith Ebert started the game on defense and weren't afraid to step up to the girls from Lowell.

Lowell had one substitute, making it tough for their girls being tired on the field with the heat, but they held it together and played strong scoring three goals in the first half. Shae Gould started the game as center. She stayed focused all game, getting an assist. She showed her great endurance covering the whole length of the field.

Callie McCauley helped out the team big time on attack getting an assist and always getting open to receive passes. Jillian Collins and Kiley Bloom started the first half of the game as midfielders, both girls did an excellent job staying on their opponents and always remembering to get back to help out on defense.

Kiley had two goals in the first half, Jillian had the assists for both goals. Addy Holland and Keira Warford also helped out on midfield getting the ball to the attack wings. Gracie Berrier, Sydney Crane, and Bella Iascone played attack and did a great job cutting for the ball and making important passes.

Sydney Crane took over the goal for the second half and played strong, only letting up one goal. She also made some great clears to Keira Warford on defense. Keira never gave up and always stayed with her opponent, making some great plays getting the ball up field to the midfielders.

Brynne Ebert showed her speed on midfield as she ran to catch passes and win ground balls. Bella Iascone did a superb job playing center and winning the draw. She did great transitioning from defense to offense with her quick speed.

Emma Alworth came in and helped out at center, possessing great field vision and space awareness. Addy Holland ran all over the field during the second half, playing midfield and also helping out on attack. She did an excellent job offensively but also providing coverage defensively.

Meredith Ebert never gave up on attack, fighting for ground balls and always getting open. Shae Gould and Jillian Collins helped out on defense, both girls never gave up and fought hard to win possession of the ball.

Callie McCauley and Kiley Bloom played hard during the second half of the game on midfield as they worked the ball down to the attack wings. Gracie Berrier was back on attack for the second half of the game and showed her excellent ball control skills. She had a set of goals in the second half of the game.

Despite the heat, both teams played great and never gave up. The game ended in a tie with a final score of 4-4.

U11 Girls

On a hot Mother's Day afternoon, the WYLA Girls U11 Team gathered to play the Northern Middlesex team.

This year's team is made up of new and returning girls. This is a developmental level team which means all the girls play all the positions and they must pass three times before they can shoot on goal. That makes it a true team game.

Jessica Collins, new this year, started off the game with her first of four goals after winning the opening draw. Also new this year Antonia DiZoglio added three goals of her own by the end of the game. Returning players Annabelle Cook and Casey Ahlin would add seven more to the final score.

None of those goals would have happened without the combined team work of the rest of the team. Playing both sides of the ball Alexis Fox and Madison Benoit

The dynamic duo goalies in Sunday's game were Gillian Kane and Lyndsey Kane. Gillian played net minder the first half keeping the Northern Middlesex team scoreless at the end of the first half so sister Lyndsey could play out helping with both offense and defense.

Second half had the sisters switching out with Lyndsey between the posts and Gillian on the run. Great teamwork by all the girls combining talents for a winning game. Hannah Bryson was missing from yesterday's game, but will be back to add strength and speed in the next game.

U15 Boys Blue

Wilmington 13, Charlestown 4

After winning a nail-biter in overtime in Danvers last week, the Wilmington Wildcats U15 Blue team came out determined to have a more decisive performance and did they ever.

The Wildcats won in a 13-4 romp over Charlestown to make for a happy Mother's Day down at the Woburn Street field. Midfielder Danny Woods was back after missing last Sunday's game and he led the scoring onslaught with four goals on the day.

Danny McGaffigan, Andrew Sullivan and Connor Rooney each had two goals apiece. While Tommy King, Ben Wright and David Fraser each contributed a goal.

It was a hot and sunny day with game time temperatures reaching into the high 80's. Both teams tried to pace themselves early on but with about six minutes to go in the first quarter, the Wildcats scored first when McGaffigan tallied his first goal of the season. Shortly after that, a score by Woods but the Wildcats up 2-0 and that was the score at the end of the first quarter.

In the second quarter, it was Woods who tallied his second goal of the game followed by McGaffigan's second goal to give Wilmington a 4-0 lead at halftime. The defense, led by goalie Aaron Soto and Defensemen Josh Smith, Kyle Kenyon, Frankie Irizarry and Cam Kenyon, stymied the Charlestown attack for the entire half and allowing only a few shots on goal.

The Wildcat offense exploded in the third quarter with Attackman Tommy King scoring his first goal of the season. This was the first of five goals in the quarter. Woods scored his third and fourth goals of the game followed by Rooney and Sullivan. The Wildcats led 9-1 at the end of the quarter.

Although the Wildcats allowed three goals in the final quarter, the game was well in hand. Sullivan scored his second goal of the game, followed by Rooney's second goal. After scoring three goals last week, Ben Wright chipped in with goal number 12 on the day and David Fraser closed out the scoring with the Wildcats 13th goal on the day.

The Wildcats U15 Blue team improved their record to 3-1 on the season and will travel next week to take on Bedford at Bedford High School on Sunday.

NECC Baseball going back to World Series

For the fourth consecutive year, the Northern Essex Community College Knights baseball team will head to the NJCAA World Series.

After a perfect 15-0 record in the Region XXI competition, they emerged from the Region XXI Baseball Tournament unscathed, with a perfect 3-0, toppling Holyoke Community College 17-7 in the title game.

Ranked eighth nationally, this is the Knights third straight World Series trip under head coach Jeff Mejia.

"I'm very excited to be back," Northern Essex head coach Jeff Mejia said. "It is a new location this year and it should be interesting. I'm really looking forward to getting to North Carolina. We know the routine now and that should definitely help us."

The Knights join seven other junior colleges in Kinston, N.C., from May 23-29 for the NJCAA World Series.

NECC (28-2) scored early and often against a Holyoke (11-13) pitching staff that ran out of gas coming through the loser's bracket. In total the Knights pounded out 20 hits, eight going for extra-bases.

The victory extended the Knights' winning streak to 23 consecutive games dating back to March 18.

"It's been a great run," Mejia said. "These kids always step up. They are a group of baseball players, that the tighter the game is the better they play."

Fitness Column/The Stretch

Five spring activities to burn some calories

By LAUREN BACHELLER
Fitness Columnist

Lauren.B.Bachelor@gmail.com

Like myself, I am sure you notice how much more active you are in the spring and summer time. Research has shown that energy expended during leisure time activity is significantly greater in the warmer months of the year - at least in areas like ours where there are four distinct seasons.

In the winter, when it's impossible to see past the snow, you're more likely to reach for the TV remote (and that box of cookies) than to go for a walk outside.

Today, you may look at photos of yourself from last August and wonder what has happened over the past eight-months. Unless you're particularly motivated and bucked the trend, you may find your current self a little plumper version of last summer's.

For those of us living in New England, this winter was particularly rough. And so far, the spring has been underwhelming at best.

When I haven't been able to get a decent workout in a while, as time passes I become less and less motivated. With every day of inactivity I sense as though the hurdle that I need to overcome to be active again becomes greater. I often refer to it as 'life gets in the way.'

However, in hopes of getting back into an exercise routine I allow myself "good enough" workouts. Basically, I force myself to go to the gym or do a training circuit at home, with a simple goal: to do something. On these days I don't work out as long or hard, but it really doesn't matter. At the end of it, I did something and tomorrow's workout will be that much better.

Also, I find that doing an activity that doesn't feel like a traditional workout tricks me into burning calories while having fun. Sometimes it's just a mental block. For some reason the gym that is ten minutes away seems so distant and undesirable; whereas being outside in the sunny backyard seems refreshing.

So here's five spring activities that you can tackle during the spring days.

1. JUMP ROPE

Remember the days of jumping rope; I do! We used to double-dutch at recess and without even realizing it get an amazing workout. I never even thought of jumping rope as exercise until college when my coach used to have us do it to warm up sometimes.

Jumping rope can be done inside or out; with your kids or alone; it's an easy and efficient activity.

2. BIKE RIDE

Bike riding is no longer an activity solely used as transportation until you're old enough for a license. It can also be a fun family gathering, while getting some exercise.

You can go for a ride in the park, or if you live close enough use it as your transportation to work. Whatever it may be, always pack some water to hydrate yourself after.

3. PLAY SPORTS

There are many different sports that are fun to play. Soccer is universally popular around the world. From Mexico to Brazil, this team sport combines family with non-stop fun! Another sport that's perfect for Spring is Baseball. Take it easy with a game of catch, or get a group together and scrimmage.

4. RELAYS AND RACES

Set up a good old fashioned potato sack race, using laundry bags or large pillow cases. One player at a time, each team puts both feet into the sack to hop around a designated marker and back to tag the next person on their team.

The first team to have every player complete the race wins! You could also have relay races where you pass a baton back to the next person on your team and see which team finishes first. Sometimes when the activity is more competitive you forget you're actually getting a work out.

5. GO FOR A HIKE

Whether it be a small trail near your home, or a larger trail at a local mountain, going for a hike is a great physical activity. Altering your terrain, uphill and downhill works different muscles and burns more calories.

While you're out there feel free to do some bird watching, or if the climate permits, pick some fresh fruit like strawberries.

Fisher tosses No-Hitter

Tewksbury resident Andrew Fisher tossed a no-hitter for the Lowell Catholic Baseball team in the team's 10-0 dominating win over Cathedral on Monday afternoon.

Fisher struck out eight in the complete game shut out victory, helping the Crusaders win their ninth game in a row.

Last year Fisher helped Lowell Catholic finish the season with an 21-3 overall record which included three state tournament wins to capture the Division 4 North Sectional crown, before losing to Pope John, 6-4 in the D4 Eastern Mass game.

5K at TCC, May 25

The Second Annual 5K Fun/Walk Charity Event on the Grounds of the Tewksbury Country Club to benefit Strongwater Farm and the 9/11 Memorial will be held on Monday, May 25.

Walk the (Battle) Road to freedom

BY RYAN LAROCHE

With Memorial Day only a few weeks away, now is a good time to reflect on the many men and women who sacrificed their lives defending the country (or, if you go back far enough, who helped to create the country).

Massachusetts was home to many battles during the American Revolutionary War. One in particular, the Battle of Lexington and Concord, kicked off the fighting that would lead the colonists to their independence. Colonial militiamen marched from Boston to Concord after Paul Revere and others sounded the alarm that the British were coming.

In order to get to their final destination, the militia marched right through the City of Woburn. The road they took, Battle Road (between Cambridge Road and Briscoe Street), still exists today. For those interested in learning more about the history, the Woburn Historical Commission, with the help of the Freedom's Way Heritage Association, is hosting a Hidden Treasures weekend.

Anyone interested can meet at Tarky Field (256 Russell St. off four corners) on Saturday, May 16 at 12 p.m. From there, visitors will be taken on a guided tour of the road and meet re-enactors along the way who will help teach them about the importance of the road and the people who walked it.

Darlene Wigton, secretary for the Historical Commission, called Battle Road "a physical road to revolution and a symbolic one - things would change forever."

That road helped lead what was just 13 colonies into a unified country.

A similar program existed

This Saturday in Woburn

REVELERS GET A TASTE OF COLONIAL TIMES along the Battle Road (at right) during a reenactment of Revolutionary times. This weekend the Woburn Historical Commission will host a history filled "Hidden Treasures" event.

for several years from 2006-2012. The commission brought it back thanks to an invitation by Freedom's Way. Cities and towns were asked to find hidden treasures and develop a program around that.

While the road remains in pristine condition and is considered a scenic byway, according to Wigton, there is some development in the area. To the south of the road is private land. In 2001, developers proposed a subdivision. Fortunately, the developers' attorney John McElhiney, also a staunch supporter of the Historical Commission, worked out a plan to guarantee the city a 35-foot easement.

It's not as much as they'd like, Wigton admitted, but there are some trees in the area to provide a shield from abutting properties.

The walk is only about one-quarter mile. Visitors will learn about historical Woburn figures such as Asahel Porter and Josiah Richardson, who set out on horseback to sell produce (possibly eggs) in Boston and met the British militia along the way. Porter

"Hot Pursuit"

by Paul Feely

As forgettable action-comedies go, "Hot Pursuit" is one of the more easily forgettable films in recent memory. The script is lazy, a series of clichés. The action is tedious. The jokes fall flat.

The only reason to see it is for its two likable stars, Reese Witherspoon and Sofia Vergara, whose charms bring a few smiles to the otherwise dull film. Knowing the limits of the screenplay, you wonder why these two talented performers signed on in the first place (Witherspoon is also a producer).

Vergara transports her Gloria persona from "Modern Family" onto the big screen as Daniella Riva. Daniella is married to Filipe (Vincent Laresca), a top lieutenant in a drug cartel. Filipe is preparing to testify against his boss, Cortez (Joaquin Cosio), in a federal trial.

But bullets fly before Filipe can make it to court, and soon Daniella is on the run with the cop assigned to protect her.

That would be Witherspoon's Cooper, a by-the-book police officer. Cooper becomes an unwitting pawn in a scheme by some corrupt cops, and soon both women are scrambling across Texas as hunted fugitives, stealing, lying, and getting into car chases.

Cooper and Daniella are hardly Thelma and Louise. They also aren't Lucy and Ethel. They are more of a half-baked version of Sandra Bullock and Melissa McCarthy in "The Heat."

None of the characters ring true. It would have helped. It wouldn't have saved the film, but an ounce of believability would have gone a long way in selling the film to an audience. The film even manages to make Jim Gaffigan unfunny. The comedian appears briefly as a man duped by the two women.

Witherspoon and Vergara do what they can, but their characters never develop much in the way of chemistry.

"Hot Pursuit" also suffers from missing-scenes: there are obvious gaps, and some key plot points go unexplained.

plained.

But most audience members will be thankful these missing scenes helped cut down the running time, and the minutes lost watching this film.

"THE AVENGERS: AGE OF ULTRON"

The Avengers: Age of Ultron is a fun, escapist superhero film. There are some elements that are overdone, like the larger-than-life action sequences, but when the story focuses on the relationships between the characters, it shines and really shows the type of clever interplay that writer/director Joss Whedon is known for.

A hint of this is introduced during an early action sequence, which shows the Avengers united as a unit once again. When Iron Man (Robert Downey Jr.) uses an expletive, Captain America (Chris Evans) responds calmly with one simple word: "Language." Despite the fact that Cap is living in our modern world, his allegiance to the innocence of the past still shines through. The Avengers tease him about his old-fashioned morals throughout the story but that teasing only shows how fond this team are of him and one another.

During the same early scene, two of the story's main villains are introduced. When one of the characters fighting the Avengers gives the order to "Send out the twins," we know that this duo is trouble. In the wake of everything he and the Avengers have seen and encountered, Stark attempts to create an artificially intelligent "suit of armor around the world." His goal is to keep humanity safe from threats we can't even imagine yet.

For what it's worth, Ultron is a more powerful villain than Loki was in the original and I was expecting that he would be a more compelling one onscreen.

The Avengers: Age of Ultron offers a look at the team as they work together and compete against one another (a competition amongst them to lift Thor's hammer offers a few chuckles during one of the film's more dialogue-driven moments. It's hard not to be disappointed that the original was better, but it's also hard not to have fun watching the characters play off against one another.

Nazareth Academy presents "Songs for a New World"

The Tony Award winning Jason Robert Brown's musical cabaret "Songs For A New World" is being performed May 15th and 16th at 7:30 pm in the Great Hall of Nazareth Academy on 27 Cordis Street in Wakefield. The cast is comprised of students from Nazareth Academy, Malden Catholic, the Richard Rogers School of New York City and The LaGuardia High School of Music and Art in New York City.

Songs for a New World takes you musically through the moments in life when everything seems perfect. Then suddenly disaster strikes in the form of a failing marriage, prejudice, an unexpected pregnancy, war, separation, and even suicide. But the story is more about how we survive these moments, how we regroup and figure out how to move forward through our most difficult times.

DOWN TO BUSINESS (WINCHESTER)

"After many years of talk, study, meetings, consultations, drafting and redrafting, the Planning Board has finally succeeded in producing revised zoning for the center business district (CBD) and getting it approved by Town Meeting," notes the Winchester edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"Well, we're finally here," Chairman Betsy Cregger told Town Meeting before reviewing the process of 'trying to find out the mind of the public' and translating that into a document.

"During the study years, she said they learned that the town center is important to residents and has potential for redevelopment but the zoning was so badly out of date it inhibited investing in development.

"Goals for rezoning, she said, were to add residential units, revitalize retail business and restaurants, maintain the look and feel of the historic downtown, and streamline the rules and regulations.

"Town Planner Brian Szekely explained how the new section for the Zoning Bylaw would reach those goals. Key features he mentioned include allowing mixed use by right, defining four subzones to allow tailoring of development to those areas, enabling planned unit development in the three areas of the downtown with the largest potential, protecting historic resources with advisory review of building design, and streamlining the review process, principally by making the Planning Board the special permit granting authority (for the CBD only).

"Selectman Lance Grenzeback said his board unanimously recommended favorable action...

"There was a little discussion about reducing parking requirements and the potential for more parking problems with addition-

TOURNAMENT MAY 29 TO FUND FIREWORKS

The Friends of Reading Recreation (FORR) is holding its annual Poker Tournament Fundraiser on Friday, May 29 at the Masonic Temple, Haven Street in Reading.

Money raised will cover the cost of the fireworks at the annual Reading Family and Friends Day (Town Day) on Saturday, June 13. The fireworks are completely made possible by donations from residents and businesses.

Complimentary pizza and beverages will be provided at the tournament as well as prizes ($250, $150, and $100 gift cards) and a 50/50 raffle.

Hall opens at 7 p.m. with an 8 p.m. sharp start time. Sign up at www.FORR01867.org.

al residents. Szekely said Winchester will need a parking garage some time in the next 10 to 15 years but cannot get state funding with the current conditions. He said the parking requirement in the bylaw sets a minimum, but a developer could provide more...."

BUSINESS UNUSUAL (TEWKSBURY)

"The Board of Selectmen have expressed a desire that a vacancy in the School Committee be filled for 'the benefit of the community,'" notes the Tewksbury "Town Crier."

"The position is scheduled to be posted on Wednesday, April 29th until noon of May 15, 2015 at which point to post will be closed.

"The certified vacancy came about with the resignation of Committee member, Lisa Puccia due to a data breach resulting from the release of a document containing personal information for special needs children in the district...

"The post will be available on line and a paper copy of the application will be available to the School Committee as well, to be returned to the Town Hall Human Resources Administrator, should the School Committee exercise its right to a joint meeting with the Board.

"The next step will be discussion of the matter on May 19th at the next business meeting...."

SNOW BUSINESS (BURLINGTON)

"With the snow day learning pilot implemented ..., the next step in the process is to gauge feedback from parents, teachers, and students so it can be determined whether or not it is used again in the future," notes the Burlington edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"The school district effectively implemented a learning pilot that provides opportunities for students to get instructional work done in place of snow days from April to June so make-up days can be minimized by two days for this year.

"Burlington and Wayland are the only districts in the state that have been granted the chance to partake in the pilot program that has the potential to off-set snow days for the foreseeable future.

"The snow day pilot for Burlington students was scaled back from four days to two, per request of the School Committee. This means that two snow days would be negated. Since the pilot has officially been implemented at all grade levels in Burlington, the last day of school in Burlington is Tuesday, June 23, as opposed to Thursday, June 25, which is what it normally would have been under a regular calendar without the pilot. The last day for teachers will be Wednesday, June 24.

"The two-day pilot project includes learning options centered on assignments, instruction, field trip experiences, and links to websites and videos so ample resources are available for students and teachers to utilize...."

by Paul Feely

•MIDDLESEX EAST SPORTS WEEKLY TRIVIA:

Who has the most game winning goals in the NHL playoffs?

Answer appears elsewhere in this column.

•Senior Hurdler
Cameron Mitchell
(Wakefield, Mass.) scored points in four different events to highlight the final day of competition, at the America East Outdoor Track and Field Championships in Albany, N.Y.

"Cam Mitchell had an outstanding weekend," said Head Coach Gary Gardner. "The 4 x 100, 4 x 400, 400 meter hurdles and the 110 meter hurdles; that's a lot of running for a weekend and he was outstanding right to the end."

Mitchell individually and the relay teams that he was part of scored in all four events as the UMass Lowell men's track and field team finished sixth with 84 points, just a half point behind fifth place Vermont. The University of Albany won the team championship for the eleventh consecutive season with 192.5 points.

"I thought we competed about as hard as we could compete," said Gardner. "A half a point out of fifth place, that's about as good as we could have asked for."

It is that competitiveness that Gardner spoke of in the week prior to the conference championships and spoke of again after the 22 event competition was complete.

"When you have 80 kids competing and you can count the number of poor performances on one hand, that's pretty good," said Gardner. For as young as we are, we competed our butts off. It was great, I'm really proud of them. The team took its cues from people like Cam and did a great job."

Mitchell's day started as part of the 4 x 100 meter relay. He tore up the track running the final leg as the team earned a third place finish. The group, junior Ian Peuser (Rockland, Mass.), freshman Richard Mulo (Malden, Mass.) junior Matt Taylor (Attleboro, Mass.) and Mitchell combined for a time of 42.11 seconds.

Mitchell followed that up with a third place finish in the 110-meter hurdles (14.74.) His third event of the day was the 400-meter hurdles. Mitchell took second place clocking in at 53.09 seconds.

"Determination is the key, the will to push yourself day after day," said Mitchell. "I wanted to go out there and beat the expectations that were set for me."

Teammate senior Richard Kirby (Tewksbury, Mass.) also earned points with a fifth place finish in the 400 meter hurdles (54.28.)

Mitchell's final event was the 4 x 400 meter relay.

"I think my relay performances are the things that I am most proud of today," said Mitchell. "I wanted to give my teammates a chance to get on the podium."

His teammates got on the podium as Mitchell's blazing final leg of the event pulled the team into a third place finish. The team of freshmen Marcus Duncan (Dalton, Mass.), Ian Allen (Plymouth, Mass.) and seniors Kirby and Mitchell finished in a time of three minutes, 18.04 seconds.

And with that, Mitchell's day was done.

"By the end of the day physically, aerobically, everything is just dead," said Mitchell. "It's going to be a nice night's sleep tonight."

While Mitchell's day was busy, senior Robert Allen (Cranston, R.I.) and Freshman Paul Hogan (Burlington, Mass.) were in the midst of a 5,000 meter drama. At the end Hogan took second and Allen fourth, but the story was the race and the strategy employed. Neither likes to lead early, but this was different.

"A lot of times at conference meets the times go slow," said Allen. "Paul and I didn't want the race to go off slow because at the end when others put that kick in, we can't go with them."

So the plan was to try to tire out the rest of the field early.

"We decided to take turns picking up the pace and taking the lead," said Allen.

"For the most part it worked for us," said Hogan. "It didn't work perfectly, but that approach helped us get good positioning at the end. Overall I'm happy."

There is also a point in the 5,000 meters, more than three-miles of racing, that pain begins to set in.

"Pain," said Hogan, "it's a 5K you're going to feel some pain, you just have to fight through it."

Hogan crossed the finish line, to take second place, in a time of 14-minutes, 44.79 seconds. Allen, fourth, finished in 14:53.50.

Leftover beef is ready for prime time in this cool supper salad.

- 1) In small jar with tight-fitting lid, mix dressing ingredients. Cover; shake well.

Expert Tips

*Replace the Chinese cabbage with arugula and the roast beef with 2 cups whole walnuts, toasted.

*Celery root, also called celeriac, tastes like a mix of strong celery and parsley. Sliced celery can be used instead of the shredded celery root.

ADULTS AND KIDS ALIKE ARE WELCOME TO LEARN ABOUT WOBURN'S BATTLE ROAD this Saturday. Sue Ellen Holland (left) shares the rich history of the area with walkers.

Battle Road From S-1

and Richardson were captured. Reportedly, both men requested permission to leave (according to Silas Dean's "Brief History of the Town of Stoneham"). Richardson was told by one officer to go see another officer to get his release, but not to run regardless of whatever the other officer said. Richardson survived. Porter, on the other hand, may not have received word not to run, so when he did, the British shot and killed him.

It's unknown whether Porter was shot for defying orders (that he may not have even received) or whether the British were fed up with defiant Yankees. Either way, it's believed that Richardson and another captive walked away safely.

The shot that killed Porter may have also been the first shot fired in what would become the American Revolutionary War.

Another historical Woburn figure in the war was Daniel Thompson who was killed in Lincoln by the British on April 19, 1775, the first day of the Revolutionary War. He was laid to rest in the First Burial Ground just off Woburn Center.

Thompson marched with the militia toward Concord as riders came to Woburn to warn about the British. At some point, Thompson and his two brothers wound up behind Hartwell Farm where the British opened fire. Thompson reportedly took down several officers before a British grenadier shot Thompson dead.

A fourth figure, Major Loammi Baldwin, led the Woburn militia at the Battle of Lexington and Concord. He also fought in the Battle of Pell's Point on Oct. 18, 1776 and the Battle of Trenton on Dec. 25, 1776 with then General George Washington.

History

The Battles of Lexington and Concord, fought on April 19, 1775, kicked off the American Revolutionary War (1775-83). Tensions had been building for many years between residents of the 13 American colonies and the British authorities, particularly in Massachusetts.

On the night of April 18, 1775, hundreds of British troops marched from Boston to nearby Concord (through Woburn) in order to seize an arms cache. Paul Revere and other riders sounded the alarm, and colonial militiamen began mobilizing to intercept the Redcoat column. A confrontation on the Lexington town green started off the fighting, and soon the British were hastily retreating under intense fire.

Many more battles followed, and in 1783 the colonists formally won their independence.

It all began in 1764 with the British enacting a series of measures to raise revenue from the 13 colonies, which enraged the colonists who protested "no taxation without representation." Boston, site of the Boston Massacre and Boston Tea Party, was one of the main points of resistance.

A decade later, Paul Revere and other riders would make their famous journey from town to town; however, it's believed they never shouted "the British are coming" as the operation was meant to be discreet since many British troops were hiding out in the countryside. Furthermore, colonial Americans still considered themselves British.

On April 19, 700 British troops arrived in Lexington and came upon militiamen. At that point, a shot was fired, though by who no one knows. Afterward, the British continued onto Concord, where they met more resistance. The British fired first, but colonists returned fire (including the "shot heard 'round the world" later immortalized by poet Ralph Waldo Emerson).

Later, the militiamen (known as minutemen for their ability to be ready at a moment's notice) followed the British soldiers back to Boston. Eventually, shots rang out and the British dropped their weapons and equipment so they could flee faster.

Although the colonists didn't kill many Redcoats, they proved they could stand up to one of the world's greatest armies. By summer, a full-scale war of independence had broken out, one which would eventually be won by the colonists.

See where it locally began this weekend. Anyone interested can meet at Tarky Field (256 Russell St.- Exit 33 off 95 toward Winchester and Right onto Russell Street at Four Corners) on Saturday, May 16 at 12 p.m. From there, visitors will be taken on a guided tour of the road and meet re-enactors along the way who will help teach them about the importance of the road and the people who walked it.

Must-see commencement speakers

The North American Association of Commencement Officers (NAACO) announced today several dynamic and engaging speakers that will lead this year's spring and summer commencement ceremonies at institutions throughout North America.

"An institution's speaker plays a vital role in the overall impact of a graduate's commencement experience and often stays with them long after the big day," said NAACO President Lois Ferguson. "These speakers will surely leave a lasting impression on graduates, as they share their knowledge and wisdom on what awaits them after graduation."

Below are some of the must-see speakers for the upcoming commencement season.

Amy J. Robach, News Anchor from Good Morning America, University of Georgia - Robach is a 1995 alumna of the University of Georgia's Grady College of Journalism and Mass Communication. She is a veteran television journalist with national and international recognition. She also is one of the University of Georgia's most accomplished alumni. Some of her most notable coverage at ABC includes covering the 2014 Winter Olympics in Sochi, Russia; reporting on the one-year anniversary of Superstorm Sandy and covering the Sandy Hook Elementary School shooting in Newtown, Connecticut. The university was honored to have her return to campus on May 8th.

Charles Gibson, Broadcast Television Journalist, Shenandoah University - "Charlie Gibson's professionalism is unparalleled, and his contributions to the field of broadcast journalism are unmatched," said Shenandoah University's President Tracy Fitzsimmons, Ph.D. "He and his family have been truly generous to our university throughout the years, and we are honored that he will address the Class of 2015 on May 9th."

Lawrence O'Donnell, MSNBC Anchor, Massachusetts General Hospital (MGH) Institute of Health Professions - "Lawrence O'Donnell's compelling story of the care he received after a serious accident is both moving and inspirational," said MGH's President Janis P. Bellack. "I believe his personal story was of great interest to our graduating students and their guests on May 11th."

Former U.S. Secretary of State Madeleine Albright, Tufts University - "Madeleine Albright's remarkable accomplishments and personal story truly speaks to Tufts' values of global leadership, public service and active engagement as a citizen of the world," said Tufts President Anthony P. Monaco. "She delivered a memorable Fares Lecture at Tufts seven years ago, and we are absolutely delighted that she will be returning to the university for this year's commencement on May 17."

Ed Catmull, President of Pixar and Walt Disney Animation Studios, Johns Hopkins University - "With a unique blend of tech savvy and creative vision, Ed Catmull has transformed the art and science of animation, harnessing technology to explore our common humanity," Johns Hopkins President Ronald J. Daniels said. "His fearless curiosity and passion for discovery speak to our students, who will leave Johns Hopkins able to stretch the bounds of creativity—to infinity and beyond." His computer scientist's problem-solving savvy, artistic sensibility, and visionary leadership, will inspire members of the Class of 2015 on May 21.

Mass. Audubon's annual Bird-a-thon Fundraiser on Friday and Saturday May 15th-16th

Bird-a-thon, Mass Audubon's friendly competition to financially support conservation across the Commonwealth, is again expected to engage hundreds of enthusiasts in an all-night/all-day bird identification marathon, May 15-16.

The statewide contest challenges teams of birders of all abilities to identify the most species in 24 hours—this year from 6 pm on Friday evening, May 15, to 5:59 pm on Saturday, the 16th.

Bird-a-thon has grown to become Mass Audubon's single largest annual fundraising event, attracting thousands of supporters and raising more than $2 million since the competition began in 1983 with a mere handful of participants.

In 2014, 800-plus people comprised 29 teams that traversed the state, from Berkshire forests and suburban backyards to meandering brooks and beaches stretching for miles. Last year, 270 species were identified either by sight or ear.

Proceeds support the respected conservation leader's statewide network of wildlife sanctuaries and the programs they offer to help people engage with the natural world.

People who can't compete in the field may still participate in various ways, including as "Bird-a-thon Boosters" to support teams or individuals by fundraising. Last year, hundreds of individuals participated by fundraising for their favorite sanctuary or program from the comfort of their own homes.

"For more than three decades, Bird-a-thon has encouraged participants of all ages and experience to celebrate birdlife and connect with nature," Mass Audubon President Henry Tepper said. "Spending time in the field with family and friends, with binoculars and bird scopes, reminds everyone how crucial natural habitats are to our environment and how important a healthy environment is—for birds and people alike.

"And after such a long, tough winter," Tepper added, "we're expecting an especially enthusiastic turnout May 15 and 16 for this most important fundraiser. It's going to be a lot of fun."

Home buyers From S-8

Home prices nationwide have risen at more than double the pace of average hourly wages, making it harder for buyers to find the extra funds to save for a down payment.

"People need to see more money in their paychecks before they'll take the plunge into homeownership," said Greg McBride, chief financial analyst at Bankrate.

If early signs are any indication, there won't be a noticeable jump in new homeowners during the spring.

Amy Arnold and her husband began looking at listings in Denver late last year. The 28-year-old apparel buyer quickly found that the few homes in the couple's price range got snapped up for more than asking price, leaving her exasperated at how "crazy" the market seemed.

For now, the couple has decided to keep renting a two-bedroom, one-bath house for $1,300 a month, hoping to have more money and find a better selection of homes once they jump back into the market.

"It's very discouraging," said Arnold. "Hopefully next year we will be able to buy, but there's a chance we may have to rent again."

Home prices nationwide have risen at more than double the pace of average hourly wages, making it harder for buyers to find the extra funds to save for a down payment.

In Denver, a limited roster of homes has fueled the rising prices and given sellers the upper hand. Forty percent of homes that sold in February went for more than the asking price, according to online real estate broker Redfin. That's up from 21 percent a year earlier. In addition, half of the homes on the market went under contract in eight days or fewer.

"Typically, January, February even March are not quite as highly competitive as when you go into the spring months," said Ilona Botton, a Redfin agent in Denver. "That's not how it was this year. It has been multiple offer situations every single month."

The limited supply of homes is widespread. In March, one measure showed it would take fewer than five months to sell all the previously occupied homes in the U.S. In a market more balanced between buyers and sellers, it would take about six, according to the National Association of Realtors.

What's more, heavy demand for low-priced homes means their prices are rising faster. Homes priced at $135,000 or less jumped 9 percent for the year ending in February, according to data from CoreLogic. Homes that priced at $226,800 or more climbed 5 percent over the same period.

Beyond offering more money, some buyers are willing to waive home inspection or give sellers several weeks to move out following a sale, said Redfin's Botton.

In general, areas with fewer homes for sale have stronger job growth that eclipses the pace of construction. Areas with larger inventories tend to keep the availability of housing in line with job growth.

In Columbus, Ohio, aviation company executive Ryan Holtmann had plenty of options. He and his wife started shopping for their first home at the end of last year. The couple visited about 15 to 20 houses before buying a three-bedroom home for $154,900 at the end of February.

"I was really surprised at how much was out there for the time of year," said Holtmann, 33. "There were three or four we liked and would have been more than happy to go with."

One factor preventing more houses from hitting the market is that many homeowners still owe more on their mortgage than their home is worth. That's known as an underwater mortgage, or being in negative equity.

While millions of homes have returned to positive equity as values come back, some 5.4 million, or 10.8 percent of all homes with a mortgage, remained underwater as of the October-December quarter, according to CoreLogic. Nevada topped the list. Nearly a quarter of its homes with a mortgage were underwater.

More construction would help buyers, but activity has recovered slowly since 2010. That's one reason a recent report by mortgage buyer Freddie Mac forecast that the U.S. housing market will continue to see low levels of homes for sale for the next several years.

As a result, even successful buyers are settling for less.

Brett Singley, a first-time buyer in Los Angeles and a father of four, knew the kind of house he wanted and how much he could afford. But after six months of searching, the civil engineer shifted his sights to smaller and less expensive townhomes. In March, he bought one in Santa Clarita, a northern suburb. He got a three-bedroom for just under $300,000 — $100,000 less than what he was prepared to pay for a house.

"We were originally looking for a four-bedroom house," said Singley. "But we didn't have a lot of options."

room, dining room and kitchen. Natural light, slightly muted by the porch overhang, washes in through the gridded glass in the front door and its side-lights. Still more spills in through the tall, similarly shaped doors and windows on two walls of the dining area and a shorter window in the kitchen. Families that thrive on light and openness will love this space.

A large work island rimmed by a raised eating bar offers partial separation between the kitchen and the rest of the room. Standing at the kitchen sink, you can gaze out the window in front of you, or keep tabs on activities inside. A generously sized utility room is nearby, as is direct access to the rear-facing two-car garage—handy for unloading groceries safely and out of the weather.

The owners' suite is at the rear. It boasts a dual vanity, totally private toilet, and a large walk-in closet. Both of the Sahalie's secondary bedrooms are up front, where they share another bathroom that also has a dual vanity. These bedrooms each have wide closets that fill about two-thirds of one wall.

Prairie-style Sahalie is relaxed & open

Crisp lines and sparkling window grids give a fresh clean look to the Sahalie. This is an update of the Prairie home, one of the few indigenous American styles. Originating in Chicago, the style was common in early 20th-century suburbs throughout the United States and is again growing in popularity.

The wide covered porch that wraps across the front and around to the left is punctuated by four sets of slender posts set on squarish framed-out bases. These support a low-pitched hipped roof with wide eaves, typical of a Prairie home.

First-time home buyers face hurdles this spring

Young people aspiring to buy their first home are already facing disappointment this year.

Rising prices are putting more homes out of reach, and pickings are slim because few properties have come onto the market this spring, when sales are supposed to take off.

Millennials are also burdened by heavy school debt and depleted savings that hurt their ability to qualify for a mortgage. Until their incomes start to rise meaningfully, many will be forced to keep hunting for a home while delaying the dream of ownership. This has weighed on overall home sales and eco-
